School Committee also unanimous in support

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - The High School Building Committee voted unanimously Monday to recommend new construction for Wilmington High School, over a renovation to the existing structure, to the Massachusetts School Building Authority, marking the end of the feasibility study.

Likewise, School Committee member Robert Hayes reported that the committee also unanimously supported new construction for the high school at the present site on Church Street.

The building committee voted on a preliminary design program and preferred schematic submittal to the MSBA. The submission to the MSBA marks the end of the feasibility study, which began in earnest in February. The committee has worked since then with owners' project management firm Jocelyn, Lesser and Associates and architectural firm Dore & Whittier.

The MSBA will vote on the preferred option July 27, and should it pass, the schematic design process begins. The committee aims to continue work over the summer and submit the schematic design, project scope, and budget to MSBA by October 7. MSBA will vote on the schematic design plan November 16.

"This is one big step forward," Superintendent Joanne Benton told the Crier.

Redistricting of voting precincts

Option may strengthen Wilmington voice in 19th Middlesex elections

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Selectmen voted Monday night to accept the original proposal for realignment of voting precincts based on the 2010 census data allowing for growth in the last ten years.

The new map shifts 1,701 residents between precincts to accommodate population growth that has occurred since the 2000 Census. 789 residents will move to a new polling place as a result of the realignment.

Voter precincts in towns within the Commonwealth may not exceed 4,000 residents. With a population of 21,363, according to the 2000

Census, the town is broken down into six precincts. According to the 2010 Census, the Town of Wilmington's population is now 22,325, which does not represent enough growth to alter the total number of precincts. It does, however, necessitate realignment to maintain equality amongst the

Richardson Estate to be sold

By JAYNE MILLER

WILMINGTON - Town Manager Michael Cairra told Selectmen on Monday that Historic New England plans to sell the Winifred Richardson estate - with protective easements in place.

The Winifred Richardson property, located at 280 Woburn Street, includes 5.7 acres of land, a house dating from 1754, barns and several other outbuildings such as a hen shelter, brooding house, and a cold cellar. The property is also known as the Boutell-Hathorn House.

Once known as Wheelgate Farm, the property is also on the National Register of Historic Places where it is described as "a significant example of Georgian and Federal period architecture."

Currently the town holds a preservation restriction on the property that was granted to the town and accepted at Town Meeting in 2007.

Richardson passed away January 20, 2010. Her will stipulated that if the town did not accept the property then the Trustee would designate a suitable replacement beneficiary within one year of the anniversary of her death.

The town received a letter

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

Local composer Gerald Frazee

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - A bandstand on the Town Common is a wonderful addition to summer. Wilmington's bandstand, or gazebo, was built as a graduation gift to the town by the WHS Class of 1977.

The gazebo has been at the center of the Wilmington Fourth of July celebration for a third of a century. Additionally, it has sparked a most enjoyable series of summer Concerts on the Common.

There was an earlier bandstand, though, and the Common was the setting for band concerts a century ago. One person who led many of the concerts was Gerald Foster Frazee.

Frazee was the organist for several years at the Wilmington Methodist Church. He was the son of Walter and Florence Folkins Frazee, who were both active in the church. They lived on Church Street, at the corner of Adams Street. Walter Frazee was the Sunday School superintendent. Mrs. Frazee was a steward of the church and her father, Richard Folkins, was the treasurer. The Wilmington Methodist Episcopal Church was established in 1881.

Gerald was a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and taught music at his home on Burlington Avenue. He would hold musical evenings, in

WHS students head to Ecuador

Educational trip for cultural exchange and service

By DANA BURNHAM

WILMINGTON - Before the summer is out, one teacher and seven students from Wilmington High School will head to the northwestern part of South America to spend a month in Ecuador, camping, hiking, and helping out in a small community. This group has decided they want to make a difference in a world they are eager to see and experience. Helming the trip is Math teacher and coach David Sundberg; along for the experience are Beatrice Banda, Connor Burke, Jack Campbell, Sarah Luz, Derek Mayo, Rachel Mellen, and Thomas Rossetti.

Partnering with World Challenge, an organization that sends high school students all around the globe, the students' trip will have two main parts: for the first part of their travels, the group will explore Ecuador while camping and trekking, including time spent in the Amazon rainforest and the Andes Mountains. The second part of the trip is focused on community service, and will also give the students a chance to immerse themselves in the culture of Ecuador. Their service project takes the students to a small school in the Napo Province. According to World Challenge, "the school is in a state of disrepair and would greatly benefit from a lot of painting, particularly in the play area and the bathrooms. They also need a number of signs made, and would love for

A treat, and treats, for Shawsheen Tech students

BILLERICA - This was no typical day in the classroom for students at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School.

Last week, culinary instructor Joe Williams had quite a treat for the boys and girls in his class.

Christina Pirello, a nationally known expert on natural and whole foods, visited the school and cooked with Williams' students.

Pirello, who has a well-known website called www.christinacooks.com, is a relative of one of the Shawsheen Tech students and was in town visiting, making the appearance at the school possible.

"The kids loved it," said Williams. "It was something we don't normally do, but it was something different and it got the kids interested."

Pirello spoke to the students about many different kinds of foods and meals and Williams admits, it wasn't exactly a conversation about cheeseburgers and French fries.

"She did a hands-on demo with the kids," added Williams. "She went around to all of the tables and interacted with the students."

Pirello has been teaching whole foods cooking classes since 1988, hosting seminars and lecturing all over the country. She has enjoyed time as the host of a television series which airs on more than 150 national public television stations and she has also written five cookbooks.

Pirello's relationship with healthy food is intriguing. At 26, she was diagnosed with terminal Leukemia and given only a few months to live before a rigorous diet of beans, grains, vegetables and other unprocessed foods led to a miraculous recovery.

Some of the meals that Pirello spoke of at Shawsheen included Quinoa Tabouleh, a chicken-less salad on toasted bread triangles, chocolate dipped strawberries and a salad of prune, orange, fennel and red onions.

Words like tofu and vegan were a regular part of the afternoon.

"At first, some of the kids said, 'Ew, look at that,'" Williams laughed. "But she made them taste all of the ingredients and the kids really embraced it. They all tried it and they all ended up liking it."

Even Williams, a self-admitted meat-and-potatoes guy, found the food enjoyable.

"It was pretty tasty," said Williams. "I'm really glad we did it."

Pirello also spoke to the students about the importance of a healthy diet, consuming enough water and the dangers of smoking.

Caitlyn Malcom (Tewksbury), Kelsea Eggerts (Tewksbury), David Scroxtton (Billerica), Maurice Crispin (Wilmington) got a chance to see Christina Pirello work her magic. Pirello is a nationally known expert on natural and whole foods who recently visited the school.

the team to arrange some English lessons for the children."

The students have spent time learning about Ecuador, from its geography of rain forest and mountains, its government, and its culture - from Ecuador's nickname of "land of eternal spring" because of its temperate climate, to the fact that, as junior Sarah Luz told the Crier, "unlike in the US, Ecuadorians do not keep guinea pigs as pets; they are instead a mealtime delicacy."

When World Challenge came to the school last spring, interest was piqued immediately. Says Burke, "I was very excited very quickly." Planning began in September of last year when students returned to school. While some may approach travel to a foreign country with trepidation, Burke says he is looking forward to "a once in a lifetime traveling experience" where he will have new things to try, such as the food, and is expecting to have some great opportunities to practice speaking Spanish.

Trip member Bea Banda has been taking Spanish for over six years, and has no concerns about speaking Spanish during her travels. Banda says she hopes "to gain a better understanding of world cultures through this trip."

Likewise, Thomas Rosetti has been taking Spanish since sixth grade so, "so the language isn't that new to [him, but he], would like to be able to speak it in day-to-day life like [he] will have to in Ecuador." Rosetti is expecting the trip to be fun, and is excited to experience a new culture first-hand. It will be a trial run of sorts for Rosetti, who is considering a future in the Peace Corps. The Ecuador trip will give him a general sense of whether it's the type

GET MORE FROM SOCIAL SECURITY

The Social Security Administration is closing some loopholes that allowed people to take benefits early, then pay them back and reapply at an age that qualified for a larger sum. The system was questionable and required a huge lump sum for payback.

Another plan-the "62-70" strategy-still seems to work for married couples. The lower-earning spouse claims benefits at age 62, while the other claims spousal benefits on those earnings as soon as he or she reaches full retirement age. Then, when the higher-earning spouse reaches age 70, he or she switches to his or her own, higher benefits, while the spouse switches to spousal benefits that are also higher.

Another strategy, when only one spouse has much of an earning history, has that person apply for benefits at normal retirement age-and then suspend his or her own payments until age 70 while the other spouse still can claim spousal benefits.

How can you boost retirement income? Whether you question benefit gimmicks or nest eggs growth, talk to us at of experience he will like. Rosetti says he hopes to gain some knowledge of what life is like outside the U.S., and acknowledges that such a trip has the potential to be life changing.

Rachel Mellen has travelled abroad only once before, on a cruise to Bermuda. She says going to Ecuador is, "going to be new, it's going to be a lot of fun. I'm really looking forward to hiking in the Andes. I think that will be the most difficult part, but it is something I really enjoy." Rachel also sees the trip as an opportunity to get better at speaking Spanish, also having studied the language since 7th grade.

Jack Campbell says that by last spring, the group had worked out a draft itinerary, and then this past fall, attended a training workshop for the trip. While anticipating that, "it will be amazing to experience a country so different from the U.S." Jack has realistic expectations about getting along in a foreign country when it comes to the language. Like others in the group, he takes Spanish in school, but acknowledges that, "communicating may be an issue while in Ecuador" as he describes himself as "far from fluent" at this point.

Sarah Luz - who will celebrate her 17th birthday in Ecuador's capital Quito - says that when she first heard about the trip at an assembly, it, "sounded so amazing, I knew right then and there I'd want to go. It took a lot of convincing for my parents to finally let me fill out the paper work." But they did, and between working at a restaurant and babysitting all summer, Sarah showed her commitment by saving up enough money to pay for the trip on her own. And although not sure that she is ready for guinea pig for dinner, Sarah says, "We will be in so many different places around the country, so we will get to taste a little bit of everything. I'm excited to see what new things I will try." Sarah says she thinks that the group will, "appreciate everything we have at home a lot more by the time we return." She points out that they will have three weeks away from cell-phones and laptops, and says, "It is going to be so different not having the ability to text my friends or update my Facebook or Twitter. I definitely think it will be good for all of us to get away from those things and see how people can live without them."

Sarah undoubtedly speaks for all the students, in telling the Crier, "I am so grateful that Mr. Sundberg presented us with this opportunity and chance of a lifetime! I am also thankful for all the support we have gotten from family, friends and the school."

As a fundraiser to defer the cost of the expedition, the students held a trivia night in the Wilmington High School cafeteria on Tuesday, June 14. If you were unable to attend and would still like to make a donation towards the trip please contact David Sundberg at david.sundberg@wilmington.k12.ma.us.

precincts. Last month Town Clerk Sharon George presented the proposed precinct map. With the disruption of so many residents' voting precincts, and particularly polling locations, Selectmen asked her to explore an option that might mitigate the impact.

Working with Wilmington Engineering Director Anthony Pronski and the state, George developed Draft Option 2, which would have moved 502 residents into different precincts, with 225 moving polling places. Those moving to new polling places are residents clustered near St. Dorothy's Church and around Silver Lake. 181 would move from Precinct 5 to Precinct 1, and 44 would move from Precinct 5 to Precinct 2 - all 225 of those residents would move their voting location from Town Hall to the Boutwell School. The only other change on Draft Option 2 was 277 residents moving from Precinct 3 to Precinct 4. While they would not have to change polling location, those residents would change legislative districts, from 21st Middlesex District to the 19th Middlesex District.

The Board of Registrars, on which George serves as an ex-officio member, voted unanimously in favor of Draft Option 2, following much discussion. While option 1 provides better for future growth based on a variety of project residential developments and an expected increase over ten years, option two displaced fewer voters.

"The Board's concern is voters of Wilmington and on that basis we voted for Option 2 because it has less displacement of residents and therefore, less displacement of voters," George told the Crier.

which he would organize and train orchestral groups.

He enlisted in the U.S. Navy in World War I and became a part of the Navy Band, playing the flute and the piccolo. After the war, he returned to Wilmington and resumed his musical endeavors. He built a home on Burlington Avenue, where he taught music.

Although there was no Veterans of Foreign Wars post in town at the time, he organized a Veterans of Foreign Wars band, which became well-known and played at least once on Wilmington Common.

Another musical event on the common was when Miss Mildred Eames, daughter of J. Howard Eames, sang the Star Spangled Banner, accompanied by Stanley Webber. This took place as a part of the Victory Dance, to support the sale of Victory War Bonds. The Boy Scouts of Troop 1 also were present for the dance.

Frazee organized a band, which included Stanley Webber on first cornet. Stan's brother George Webber was another member, along with Charles Waite and Leo Waterman. Frazee played the piano.

Gerald Frazee left Wilmington in 1929 to take a position as a church organist in Wellesley. He later moved to Newton. He died in 1980.

Frazee wrote several compositions, including Young Veterans in 1922, Marches for Lodge Work and Indoor Marching in 1932 and The Lord is Exalted in 1937.

Tewksbury candidate.

"I don't mean to say that someone from Tewksbury couldn't serve Wilmington well," Champoux elaborated. "Someone from Wilmington could potentially serve our interests better over the course of the next ten years."

Champoux made the motion to accept Draft Option 1, which was seconded by Newhouse. The vote was four to one in favor, with Selectman Michael McCoy opposed.

"I'd go with option 2 to make it easier on everybody," said McCoy.

"At the beginning of 2012, every household will be notified through the town census mailing if there is any change in where they vote," said Town Clerk George. Sending the notifications through an already budgeted mailing keeps down the cost of the redistricting.

The precinct changes cannot go into effect before December 31, 2011, according to the state's Director of Elections Michelle Tassinari,

Woman charged with animal abuse

Alleged to have left 18 animals in a hot van, resulting in one death

TEWKSBURY - A South Dakota woman has been arrested and arraigned on animal abuse charges after allegedly leaving fifteen dogs and three cats in her car for over five hours on a hot day, resulting in the death of one of the dogs.

On Tuesday, June 7, 2011, at 1:12 p.m., the Tewksbury Police Department responded to Motel 6, 95 Main Street, for a report from an employee that a dead dog was observed in room #105. The caller also observed several other dogs inside a blue van.

Upon arrival, officers observed several dogs inside a blue van, some of which were in cages, and all appeared to be in severe distress. The windows of the van were all closed, with the outside temperature close to 85 degrees. Officers were able to make contact with the owner of the dogs, identified as Margaret Nickerson-Malpher, 71, of 3700 S Westport Ave., Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

According to police, officer encountered a burst of hot air and a strong odor of urine and feces upon opening the van. Officers and civilians immediately began rendering care to all of the dogs with water and ice bags, eventually transferring the animals to an air conditioned room. Two cats were discovered inside as well.

MSPCA was called to assist, along with the Tewksbury Health Department. All of the animals were exhibiting severe signs of dehydration and exhaustion, and were unable to walk. Eventually, MSPCA transported three dogs in critical condition to Angel Animal Hospital for treatment, and the remainder of the animals were taken to MSPCA in Methuen for treatment.

Officers were able to determine that the dogs were inside the van in this condition from at least 8:00 a.m. that morning. Officers discovered several more dogs inside the room that Nickerson-Malpher was staying in. One of the dogs in the room was deceased.

Nickerson-Malpher was placed under arrest at the scene and was arraigned in Lowell District Court on Wednesday, June 8, on charges of animal cruelty (18 counts). Lowell District Court Judge Michael Brooks ordered the defendant held on $1,000 cash bail with the conditions that if she posts bail, she is to remain in Massachusetts with the exception that she may travel to Maine to attend legal proceedings, but only with prior approval from the Court, she must report to probation in person at least once a week, and she may not possess any animals.

Her next court date is August 9 for a pretrial conference. "This defendant is alleged to have inflicted extreme cruelty to eighteen helpless animals by leaving them in an enclosed vehicle in hot, humid weather for an extended period of time, killing one of them and hospitalizing the others," District Attorney Gerry Leone said. "I commend the work of the Tewksbury Police Department and the MSPCA for their cooperative assistance in getting the animals immediate medical attention."

In total, fifteen dogs and three cats were found on scene.

The District Attorney notes that these charges are allegations and the defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Letters to the editor

Chief thanks community

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the men and women of the Wilmington Police Department, I would like to thank everyone for their efforts in helping us to organize the Bone Marrow Registry and Blood Drive held in support of Officer Shawn Lee. The community support enabled WPD to assist Officer Shawn Lee and his family to bring awareness and help save lives.

The May 21 Registry and Drive enabled the American Red Cross to bank 89 pints of blood, many of which were of a critical type requested and 97 individuals registered for the National Bone Marrow Registry. The community response was overwhelming. We would like to acknowledge the donations made by Staples, of Wilmington Crossing, Designs by Don, and the volunteer efforts of the Women of Wilmington (WOW), Wilmington High School Community Service Team, Aleppo Shriner Clowns, community volunteers, and the men and women of the Wilmington Police Department and their families. Special thanks to the many donors who waited patiently to donate and help us make a difference.

This was truly a community effort and we thank everyone for their time and support.

Sincerely,
Chief Michael R. Begonis

Safe partying all night long

Dear Editor,

The Tewksbury Memorial High School "All Night Long" Graduation Committee would like to thank the over 100 volunteers who made this year's celebration such a huge success! Without their dedication and commitment to the graduates, this event would never happen. This celebration takes months of planning and many volunteers, and the Tewksbury community ALWAYS comes through and makes each celebration even better than the one before.

Over 160 graduates partied safely all night long at this 15th annual event. They enjoyed a hypnotist show, competed on an obstacle course, won prizes, and ate delicious foods throughout the night. Meanwhile, their parents slept peacefully, knowing that their sons and daughters were safe at a fully-chaperoned, drug and alcohol-free event.

We would also like to thank the many local businesses who helped to make this event happen. They include: Aubuchon Hardware, Aubut's Liquors, Balance Spa, Big Top Party Rental, Burger King, Community Auto School, Domino's Pizza, Donna's Donuts, Dr. Barry Chudnofsky, Dr. Stephen Demetriou, DMD, Drs. Cooper, Spiller, Nahata and Lubinsky, Farmer and Dee, Inc, French's, Giovanni's, Gleason Insurance Agency, Holt and Bugbee Company, Home Depot, Jade East, Jimbo's, Kay's Hallmark, Laura Lee, Lisa's Pizzeria, KA Telecom, Inc, Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank, Madeleine Brooks Insurance Agency, Main Street Pizza, Market Basket, Maureen DiPalma, Meadowland's IceCream, Papa Gino's, Perfectos Caffe, Piezano's Pizzeria, Pizza Mia, Privatek Development, LLC, Spring Mfg Corp, Tewksbury Board of Selectmen, Tewksbury Country Club, Tewksbury Firefighters, Tewksbury Florist and Greenery, Tewksbury Funeral Home, THMS PAC, Tewksbury Paint and Hardware, Tewksbury Police Association, Tewksbury School Committee, Tewksbury Teacher's Association, Tewksbury Transit, Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Lodge, Touch of Elegance Salon, and Wicked Cheesy.

And, finally, we would like to thank those graduates who respected the many decorations that were placed throughout the school and who took the time to thank the chaperones and volunteers for their hard work. It was a pleasure to see them enjoy this great night with their classmates. We wish you them continued success as they further their education or start out in the business world.

Sincerely,

Moving Mountains

by Mary Cote

Learning and Living in the Foothills of the Alps for Six Weeks

In France, you eat breakfast together. You have bread or cereal or coffee. You are allowed one bowl, and sometimes a plate. Napkins are typically cloth, and I've yet to see anything resembling a paper-towel. Eating together is about togetherness as well as food. The phrase "to go" that peppers neon signs on roads across America is absent in France, excepting the small number of token American restaurants, like "Mac Do" and Subway. Even in fast food restaurants, the French sit and eat, and talk, and talk and talk. My first day in France I sat and listened to the beautiful French all around me, and thought about how this wouldn't happen the same way in America. As a country I think it's fair to say that our priorities are going and doing rather than sitting and talking.

When you meet someone in France, you kiss them once on each cheek. It doesn't matter if you've never seen that person before, if they are old, young, male, female, beautiful or ugly with open sores all over their face (well, actually, I'm not sure in that case). You kiss them, and say hello, and often you do it again to say goodbye. The bisou (kiss) is the standard greeting, the French equivalent of a handshake or a hug. My first experience with the bisou was extremely awkward. It was three years ago, visiting Thierry's youth group. We were warned by our youth pastor, to expect the bisou, and when we were shocked at how awkward it would be to kiss someone on the cheek the first time we met them, he politely told us to suck it up. He said, it's a cultural convention we need to participate in, even if we can't understand it.

Now, after visiting France four times, I'm beginning to appreciate the intimacy of the bisou. Yes, you read that correctly, it's taken me four trips to France over three years to appreciate the bisou. I realized this week that there is something about kissing a stranger twice on the cheek that communicates human connectedness and respect in a totally different way than a hug or a handshake. Now wait, you may be thinking, a handshake or a hug can communicate these things as well. And here, my American friends, I agree. However handshakes, while they are friendly representations of greeting, can also be used to showcase strength - like enemies before a duel, or a guy meeting his fiancé's father for the first time, who served in the Marines for twenty years. Here, a shake of a hand serves as a test of strength and abilities. Also, the handshake necessarily involves prolonged eye contact. Kissing on the cheek involves neither strength nor examination.

Looking back, my youth pastor's encouragement to "suck it up and just try" was good advice, and something I now try to keep in mind when encountering uncomfortable experiences. So, in the spirit of courageously experiencing French culture for six whole weeks, I want to send you, in written form of course, a bisou. I hope to write this column with honesty, and always try to be culturally aware and sensitive.

As a bit of an introduction, this is my fourth time in France, fifth if you count an extremely busy weekend during my study abroad in Paris. My church (First Baptist Church in Reading) is involved with our missionary in France, Thierry Mirone, as well as an Evangelistic camp called "Champfleuri." Both have brought me to the Rhone-Alpes region of France for mission trips over the past three years. I have enjoyed each trip for the cultural experiences and the chance to help with Christian outreach. France is a beautiful, but spiritually needy nation (check out the Thierry's denomination for more information at francemission.org). So when the opportunity surfaced to spend six weeks in France interning with Thierry, I was excited to accept. However I could never have made it to France without the support of my friends, family, and church family. My church, First Baptist Church in Reading, has also sent Mike and Monica as interns this summer as well. I have known both for the past few years through working at the youth group together, and am excited to experience the internship alongside them.

Since Tuesday I have been living with Thierry and his family in their home in Albertville, France. Thierry has three young boys who are very energetic. They remind me of boys from the summer camp where I work, and they have made this week a lot of fun. They don't speak any English, but that doesn't stop us from being able to pretend fight with pretend weapons, which I have found is internationally loved among young boys.

If the name Albertville sounds vaguely familiar and you're older than 30, you might remember that the Winter Olympics were hosted here in 1992. There are still remnants of the games, most notably: the torch post, an ice skating rink, and a really tall spindly thing used in the opening events. These stand as testaments to its past fame, but as far as I can tell have little impact on daily life in Albertville. Interestingly, there are signs all over town campaigning to bring the Olympic winter games back to Albertville in 2018, but Thierry doubts they will win because the amount of money France could give to Albertville wouldn't be very much.

As a town, Albertville is small and not unlike a French version of Wilmington. There are very few Malls in France in general, but Albertville does host a large store similar to Target called "Geant" with a few clothing/video games stores attached as well as a small restaurant, not unlike Panera. We've visited Geant, we picked Thierry's sons up from school, and we helped him on a small administrative project. The past few days have been full of adjusting, and thankfully Thierry has kept our schedule relatively free.

In thirty minutes I am heading out to a youth service retreat with Thierry's church youth group. There will be fifty people there, a lot for a church related event by French standards. The retreat is five hours away and there will be traffic, so I'm gearing up for a lot of car time! When we get back I'll be heading to my second host family, so next week I'll have lots of stories from the weekend and my new environment! A plus! (Later!)

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

I wonder if Mr. Cave at Krochmal farms intends to ruin every weekend this summer for residents of Tewksbury and North Wilmington? I really wish he would stop dumping his pig waste out behind our homes. The odor is horrible.

Wilmington

I assume Krochmal farms started dumping their pig manure on the weekends now so that residents can't immediately contact the appropriate boards of health to register a complaint?

Wilmington

Was the Town Crier not invited to Friday night's WHS Scholarship Awards ceremony? How sad that there was no coverage to celebrate Wilmington's high school scholars! Isn't it time that our brightest students get recognized as much as our athletes do? Too bad the rest of the town doesn't know about the 80 students who received financial awards amounting to what had to be nearly $500,000.00, including three students who received full-rides to two different universities, and the MANY generous donors who came out on June 3 to honor our students. Thank you to all of them!

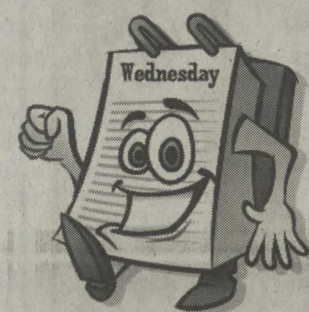

Wilmington

I went to Sovereign Bank two weeks ago for a $3,000 loan against my home, a home I've had for 12 years while never being a day late for a single payment. They said no! My credit is in the top 5% in the country and they said no??? I have been waiting for an answer, a reason, an explanation now for two weeks. I call every day and every day I get the same response...."someone will call you back."

I have a mortgage, auto loan, checking and savings with Sovereign Bank but that carries no weight. I'm refinancing elsewhere never to return to this popcorn stand of a bank!

Sparkle and Shine!!

Dear Editor,
Saturday evening (June 11, 2011) was Lorraine Spada's School of Dance 30th Recital Celebration. The performance was flawless as usual. The tribute at the end by the students to my sister was miraculous. Not often in our lives do we get thanked for all our kind deeds, efforts of friendship and compassion. Last night she was THANKED. She has walked the talk of "dance with your heart" for her lifetime. A video thank-you was presented to her, which we all viewed. "Through the years" by Kenny Rogers, and "I have been changed for good" was played in the background while photo after photo of students, current and the past, with notes of thanks was viewed by all in the audience. Lorraine has treated her students with respect and kindness for thirty years. The tribute was a validation of her commitment to keeping a young person's ego shining for a lifetime. I am proud to be her sister and even prouder that she is my friend. Sparkle and Shine Always!!!!

Blood drive for Children's Hospital & The Jimmy Fund

Update on Wakefield West Side Social Club Drive

TEWKSBURY - There will be a blood drive for children's Hospital and the Jimmy Fund Clinic on June 23 at the Tewksbury Country Club from 2:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

The drive is in honor of Ashley Cashell, Lyndsey Pettengill, Jessica Downing, Nicholas Barbaro, and Scott Einarson. These children are fighting cancer and are here today because someone took the time out to donate a pint of their blood. Without blood donors, none of these children would have a fighting chance. Mark Cashell, organizer of the drive, knows this first hand as his daughter Ashley is here today because someone donated a pint of blood to help save a child.

Ashley, as well as all of these children, received many transfusions during her Chemotherapy treatments both at Children's Hospital and the Jimmy Fund Clinic. Without these transfusions she would not have been strong enough to receive her chemotherapy drugs and she would not have fought her way into remission.

Because of someone like you, Ashley was able to enjoy meeting Sleeping Beauty and many more of her princess friends. Her wish came true again thanks to blood donors, or as Mark like to refer to you all as, silent heroes.

Please consider taking the time out to come up and donate a pint of blood on Thursday, June 23 from 2:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. at the Tewksbury Country Club, Route 38 Tewksbury. Walk ins are welcome but appointments are suggested to avoid any possible wait. If you would like to make an appointment and avoid any wait please email Mark Cashell, at Meancash@aol.com or call 978-604-9566.

If you donated in Wakefield at the last drive, the next drive will be August 17, 18, and 20 at the West Side Social Club. If you donate at the Tewksbury Country Club you will be eligible to donate again on August 18.

The drive at the West Side Social Club collected 120 pints. Each pint helps four children; that's 480 children that will now receive blood and blood products.

Boston Metro Hi-Railers Train Club

Will have an operating display at Wilmington 4th of July Celebration

WILMINGTON - The Boston Metro Hi-Railers (BMHR) is an O-Gauge model railroad club that just moved from Melrose to Wilmington in the last month. The club is now located at 5 Waltham Street in Wilmington, Massachusetts.

The club has been in existence for 12 years. Its members have over 150 locomotives and roughly 500 freight and passenger cars.

There are two layouts available for running trains. The large club layout is a work in progress, but is capable of operating up to 12 sets of trains simultaneously. This layout is capable of running the modern, full scale locomotives and rolling stock. Scenery is being added to this layout.

The second layout is a smaller 1950's type display layout containing buildings, operating accessories, signals and trains. O gauge size trains are the larger size that you may remember from your early years when Lionel trains were a favorite gift for many children. Club members operate three-rail O-Gauge trains from all the modern manufacturers: Lionel, Mike's Train House, Williams by Bachman, Atlas O-Gauge and others.

Plan to attend one of these Open House events at the club.

The club's first activity in Wilmington will be on Saturday, July 2, as part of the town's Family Day celebration on Wilmington Common. The club will have operating train sets, which will include accessories that children can operate. The display will also include some of the train club's featured train sets for viewing. It will be operating from 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The display promised to be interesting to all age groups.

Reaching beyond our little community

Tewksbury Congregational Church Youth missions program

TEWKSBURY — In our commercialized society, youth have limited opportunity to learn the joy of giving and helping others. In an effort to encourage youth to think beyond themselves, Tewksbury Congregational Church has begun a new program in an effort to raise awareness of this need. Missionaries in Training gives Sunday School youth a chance to earn "bible bucks" which are used to purchase items locally or globally for those in need.

Each week, Sunday School students have the ability to earn Bible bucks through such efforts as weekly Sunday School attendance, performing acts of kindness in church or at home, volunteering for a service project and/or learning a class-level achievement. Examples of achievements include learning the song Jesus Loves Me for the three year olds progressing to the recitation of The Lord's Prayer for third graders and the 100th Psalm for high schoolers.

This past Sunday, Tewksbury Congregational

Church youth were able to cash in their Bible bucks at the TCC Missions Store. In total, youth spent a total of $786 Bible bucks and another $26 in hard-earned cash, which was spent for various charities. Some items bought included two flocks of geese, two flocks of chicks, one flock of ducks, one hive of honey bees, and one water buffalo for Heifer International; eight sets of kid's pajamas for Alternative House; 17 sweat-shirts for Solomon Mental Health Center/Lowell Youth Treatment Center; a school kit through Church World Service; and various food stuffs for the Tewksbury Food Pantry. Youth also opted to support an on-going church effort of baking brownies for the Lowell Transitional Living Center by purchasing ingredients.

Beth McFadyen, a mother of four, states, "This program is fantastic! I love how our congregation encourages our members to be great citizens of the world by giving them a say in how our mission dollars are spent. Through this youth program, we are now creating lots of enthusiasm around sharing our gifts with others. Our children are learning the valuable lesson that a portion of the money they earn should be shared from the heart to help others in need."

For more information regarding the youth education programming at Tewksbury Congregational Church, located at 10 East Street, Tewksbury (across from the Town Common), please visit their website at www.tewksburycc.org.

Tewksbury Congregational Church, a member of one of the largest Protestant denominations in New England, is located across from the Town Common, and was established in 1734. Tewksbury Congregational Church welcomes all people desiring to lead their lives according to the teachings of Jesus Christ, regardless of race, color, national origin, previous religious background, economic status, gender, age, sexual orientation, or physical challenges. Cancer survivors join hands to sing "You'll Never Walk Alone" at Winchester Hospital's tenth annual celebration of National Cancer Survivors Day on June 2 at Holiday Inn Select in Woburn.

Winchester Hospital holds tenth annual celebration of National Cancer Survivors Day

WINCHESTER — Nearly 250 cancer survivors, physicians, staff, friends and family members gathered on Thursday, June 2 for Winchester Hospital's tenth annual celebration of National Cancer Survivors Day, offering one another support and encouragement in their shared fight against cancer. The event took place at Holiday Inn Select in Woburn.

Winchester Hospital's celebration of National Cancer Survivors Day was established specifically for patients of the Breast Care Center, but has grown to include people living with, and in remission from, cancers treated hospital-wide. During this year's Broadway musical-themed celebration, Winchester Hospital physicians paid tribute to their patients' compassionate support of one another and bravery in fighting the disease.

Several physicians expressed excitement for the opening of Winchester Hospital's Center for Cancer Care, which is scheduled for completion this summer. The project will ensure convenient, high-quality clinical care and support services offered under one roof, close to home for area residents.

Dr. Chitra King, chief of Winchester Hospital's Hematology-Oncology Department, said she is "thrilled" about relocating to the Center for Cancer Care, located at 620 Washington St. in Winchester. She added, "I've been attending this event for the better part of its 10 years, and it's great to see that it gets bigger all the time. This is a wonderful affirmation of hope."

Dr. Stephanie Bernstein, a medical oncologist who is already practicing at the Center for Cancer Care, delivered a tribute appropriate for the Broadway musical theme. She told the cancer survivors, "You are all one singular sensation. If you're feeling down, remember that the sun will come out tomorrow. I believe in you, I believe in you."

Also sharing in the celebration were Dr. Delphine Lui, associate medical imaging director of the Winchester Hospital Breast Care Center; breast surgeons Dr. Marta Quijano and Dr. Nayomi Edirisinghe; and nurse practitioner Janet Gallant-Wood.

Breast cancer survivor Pam Noyes of Tewksbury said she views Winchester Hospital's annual celebration of National Cancer Survivors Day as an extension of the support group she joined shortly after being diagnosed in 2004. She enjoyed this year's event with other original members of the support group, whom she said e-mail one another constantly and get together several times a year.

Billerica resident Cindy Baldwin, who is also a member of the support group dating back to 2004, said she still appreciates never having felt rushed by any member of Winchester Hospital's medical or support teams. "Much of the staff is the same," she noted, "and the way they remember us years later is absolutely incredible."

To learn more or register for a support group at Winchester Hospital, call (781) 756-4760. For more information about Winchester Hospital's oncology centers in Woburn and Stoneham, call (781) 756-2301 or (781) 279-4064. To learn more about the Breast Care Center, call (781) 756-2308.

Winchester Hospital recognizes 'Extraordinary Nurse' Maureen Mills

Wilmington nurse honored for second time

WINCHESTER - Winchester Hospital has recognized Maureen Mills, RN of Wilmington as its most recent recipient of the DAISY Award for Extraordinary Nurses after being nominated by a patient for being "not just my nurse, but a friend." The DAISY Award, presented in collaboration with the American Organization of Nurse Executives, is part of the DAISY Foundation's program to recognize the exceptional efforts that nurses make each day.

Mills is the first nurse at Winchester Hospital to be recognized twice. She received her first DAISY Award in July 2009.

In the nomination, Samantha Hagan of Wilmington recalled how Mills helped her "see beyond the pain and hurt" after a difficult loss during her hospitalization in April 2009. Hagan gave birth to a healthy baby girl, Taelyn, at Winchester Hospital in October 2010.

"Maureen was so sweet and came to visit me and see my baby," Hagan wrote. "Maureen deserves this award more than anyone, because if it wasn't for her and her caring, compassionate, sensitive self, I truly believe my grieving process would have been a lot harder for me. I want Maureen to know that what she does and who she is as a person is definitely a positive addition to this hospital and the lives of her patients."

Winchester Hospital has joined hundreds of medical facilities across the country in honoring extraordinary nurses with a DAISY Award each month. Based in Glen Ellen, Calif., the non-profit DAISY Foundation was established in memory of J. Patrick Barnes, who died at age 33 from complications of the autoimmune disease Idiopathic Thrombocytopenic Purpura (ITP) in 1999. The DAISY Award, which stands for "Diseases Attacking the Immune System," was established by Barnes' wife and parents as a gesture of thanks to nurses nationwide for the profound difference they make in the lives of patients and their families.

In recognition of her selection, Mills received a special DAISY Award pin for those who have received the award more than once.

To learn more about the DAISY Award program, visit www.daisyfoundation.org.

Local student honored at the State House

BOSTON - A Tewksbury student was among the 48 young writers whose achievements were celebrated at the State House in May. Erin Murphy, a 12th grader at Arlington Catholic High School, received an Honors award in this year's Massachusetts Letters About Literature program, sponsored by the Massachusetts Center for the Book and the Library of Congress.

Erin Murphy wrote to Eleanor Coerr about Sadako and the Thousand Paper Cranes. Though Sadako lost her battle with cancer, Erin has come to understand that those sixty-five pages recounting her story are not about loss so much as they are about the power of hope and faith in the most dire of circumstances.

Letters About Literature is a nationwide program in which students in Grades 4 through 12 write letters to authors about books that have made an impact on their lives. Nearly 70,000 young readers nationwide participated in this year's Letters About Literature program, and almost 4,300 of those letters came from Massachusetts. The top one percent of the students writing in the commonwealth this year were invited to the State House.

Rep. Kate Hogan, Chair of the Library Caucus in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, opened the program with a welcome to the audience of 300 people in the Great Hall of the State House, and Robert C. Maier, Director of the Board of Library Commissioners was the master of ceremonies. M.T. Anderson, a much-awarded author of literature for children and young adults - and a Massachusetts resident - was the keynote speaker for this annual event that focuses on engaged thinking by young people throughout the commonwealth about the importance of books and reading in their lives.

"The letters we read each year are a treasure trove of insight about the way that books connect us to the world around us, and they communicate so much about the issues that preoccupy our next generation of commonwealth leaders," says Sharon Shaloo, Executive Director of the Massachusetts Center for the Book, which administers the program in Massachusetts.

Judges for this year's program were David Buchanan, Massachusetts Dept of Elementary and Secondary Education; Diane Daily, Massachusetts Cultural Council; Nancy Meagher, Massachusetts Reading

Association; Jacqueline Rafferty, Massachusetts Library Association; and Sharon Shaloo, Massachusetts Center for the Book.

You can read more about the program and view the letters written by this year's award winners at www.mass-book.org, the web site of the Massachusetts Center for the Book, where you will also find information about other Center programs.

The Massachusetts Center for the Book (MCB) is the Commonwealth affiliate of the Center for the Book in the Library of Congress. MCB works with the national center and within a network of 50 state center affiliates to promote books, reading, literacy, and libraries. MCB is funded, in part, by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners, Massachusetts Cultural Council, and Simmons College Graduate School of Library & Information Science.

Target sponsors Letters About Literature as part of its national reading initiative, "Ready. Sit. Read!" which is aimed at fostering a love of reading among children at an early age. Since opening its first store in 1962, Target has partnered with nonprofit organizations, guests and team members to help meet community needs.

Fitchburg State names spring Dean's List

FITCHBURG - Fitchburg State University President Robert V. Antonucci has announced the names of area students included on the Dean's List for the spring semester.

The Dean's List honors students for consistently high academic achievement. A student is named to the list after achieving a 3.20 or better average while attending classes full-time.

Fitchburg State University enrolls 7,000 day and evening students in more than 50 programs of study. The university was established in 1894.

Attached is a list, broken out by town, of all the students who have earned this status. In years past we have attempted to tailor the list to individual publications and their circulation area, but this often led to omissions. We are hopeful this new technique will avoid such lapses without making too much additional work for editors.

Everyday we are blessed to meet wonderful men and women who unfortunately deal with cancer themselves or have friends or family members who suffer. We feel that it is our responsibility to show our support to help the world be free of cancer so that no one has to suffer. Wildcat Community Service Program

Volunteers opportunities for WHS students

WILMINGTON - Attention Wilmington High School students! Get a jump on next year's service hours by participating in the Wildcat Community Service Program (WCSP) this summer. This program networks high school students with 28 local non-profit agencies. It's a great way to fulfill your required service hours, get volunteer experience and help out your community. Some upcoming opportunities include assisting with Fourth of July activities, helping at the Farmer's Market, doing office work at the Chamber of Commerce, gardening at the library, giving museum tours at the Harnden Tavern, coaching summer basketball and more.

The Wildcat Community Service Program is funded through a grant from the Horne Family Foundation and sponsored by the Wilmington School/Business Partnership (WSBP). It was created and developed by Diane Garrity, who serves as the Program Director. Diane is a member of the WSBP and the Wilmington Educational Foundation (WEF), and has been involved with students over the years through her volunteerism with the Shawsheen/West PAC, Cub Scouts and Girl Scouts, religious education and substitute teaching. She truly believes this program will give WHS students the chance to develop their talents, expand their horizons and assist our town's non-profit agencies. "By volunteering, students will not only feel good about themselves, but make a difference in their community as well. The goal is to have students 'give back' by assisting local non-profit agencies with fundraisers and events, while fulfilling required service hours. It's a great service learning experience for all participants and may also lead to future scholarships opportunities," explains Garrity.

Since the program's debut in February, the WCSP has received 85 requests from students who have volunteered at several PAC events, a blood drive/bone marrow screening, Easter egg hunt, Fishing Derby and the Salvation Army to name a few. According to WCSP's Director, participating agencies have been very responsive and impressed with students' attitude, enthusiasm and willingness to do what it takes to get things done. Parents and students have also expressed their gratitude for a program that focuses on youth volunteer opportunities in Wilmington. The WCSP is in the process of adding more summer opportunities, which will allow our students to become involved with agencies that will benefit from their energy, skills and ideas. For more information on the program and how you can join, please click on the WCSP link on the WHS website at www.wilmington.k12.ma.us or contact Diane Garrity at wildcatsp@comcast.net.

Building Committee unanimously supports new construction regarding the completion of the feasibility study. "Now the fun begins, the real design of the building."

"It was a long process, but I think the end was worth all the work. We did the best we could to engage the community through the three public forums," added Benton. "Now we have new work to do."

Should MSBA approve the schematic design in November, the committee will then embark on the debt exclusion and town meeting approval, tentatively slated for December 2011.

The committee is recommending option 2A-15, which would construct a new facility on the present site of the high school. It will be under construction while the current high school is in use and would not require demolishing Alumni Field. The design utilizes "pods," effectively clustering small and large classrooms together and adjacent to science and technology spaces, art, music, and more, rather than the departmental organization most adults today experienced in high school.

The educational programming proposes an increase in nearly all types of spaces in the building, save the gymnasium, which at its current size, 12,050 square feet, would remain the same in the new building.

The Auditorium would increase from 468 seats to 800 seats, the library media center would increase from 4,838 to 5,900, the music space would increase from 2,242 to 3,500, and general classrooms would increase from 722 square feet to 850 square feet. Small group learning and distance learning/ lecture space would be new space not currently available at WHS. Specialized small group space may enable the town to create programs for special needs children who would otherwise be placed outside the district at great expense.

The C.A.R.E.S. Program raised $750.00 for a new safety vest for Kimo, the K-9 dog of the Wilmington Police Department. Mrs. Monteforte and Mrs. Ferrari of the Shawsheen C.A.R.E.S. Program dedicated a lot of time preparing for the fundraiser. They spent two months helping the children sew items for their big sale. They made hand bags, tissue box holders, eye-glass cases, DS cases, and wallets. They thank all the families who supported the effort and helped raise money for the community. Congratulations to raffle winner Justin H.

Richardson Estate to be sold from Carl R. Nold, President and CEO of Historic New England, dated May 31. This is the first time, said Cairra, that the town was officially notified of plans to sell the property to a third party.

In the letter, Nold says that the real estate transfer by the Trustee of Miss Richardson's estate had closed and that the organization has taken possession of the property.

"We understand and appreciate the town's interest in preserving this vital historic resource, and we would like to have the opportunity to meet you later this month to review our plans," wrote Nold.

Cairra told Selectmen that he plans to meet with Nold and find out what role the town may play in the process.

Another letter to the Town Museum Curator, Terry McDermott, was sent under separate cover on the same date from Jess Phelps, the Team Leader for Historic Preservation, with more information about plans for the materials in the home as well as offering assurances "that your role as the primary custodian of Wilmington local history artifacts will be recognized as we evaluate the contents and prepare to sell the house with protective easements in place."

Historic New England already completed interior and exterior photographs of the property to document the property as it was left when Miss Richardson passed away. The organization is also conducting interviews with people that know the property and assessing the contents to determine, "which items will be accessioned into our permanent collections and archives for their relationship to the history of New England, and to honor the memory of Winifred Richardson."

Phelps writes that the "relatively intact" condition of the contents of the home offers a "good example of family life over time."

Once Historic New England has reviewed the items and chosen those that fit with their "collecting goals for the benefit of those who study New England's cultural heritage" the town will be offered an opportunity to consider whether there are any items that will fit with the collection or be useful in interpretive programs. Any items that might prove desirable to Wilmington from the remainder of the contents will be donated back to the town.

Historic New England is a "museum of cultural history" that collects and preserves buildings, landscapes, and objects dating from the seventeenth century to the present. These acquisitions keep history alive, offering education and understanding of the New England cultural heritage.

Relay For Life events

To continue the tribute to these people, Rocco's Restaurant and Concord Teacakes are providing a special Survivor Dinner.

Entertainment begins at 6:30 p.m. with music and other guest appearances. At that time, there will be a free Salsa lesson by Boston's Jennifer Earls who teaches and performs across the country. Adding to the festive atmosphere, the Wilmington Dance Academy will also perform. This studio is owned and operated by Laura Osgood, a former New England Patriots cheerleader who is one of the many highly qualified dance instructors there.

Throughout the evening, the Snack Shack and Relay Fun Zone provide food and fun for all ages. There will be carnival games, prizes, a dunk tank, an obstacle course, a bouncy house, and much more.

A shift in the Relay theme happens at 8:30 p.m. when the Luminaria Ceremony takes place. With a backdrop of flickering candles from hundreds of luminaria bags, time is set aside not only to honor the survivors, but to also honor the memories of loved ones lost to the disease. It is a poignant and moving tribute. After that ceremony, entertainment and activities continue throughout the night.

Music will be provided by Two Cousins DJs and Karaoke founded in 2004 by Daniel McCarthy and Chris Ferarro. At 9:30 p.m., the Jessica Prouty Band adds their rock and alternative music sound to the celebration. Their performance ends at 11:00 p.m., which coincides with closure to the general public.

For registered participants, the fun continues throughout the night. Bertucci's of Reading is sponsoring a free pizza party, and local comedy talent Stephen Bjork will perform. Bjork has appeared at all the major New England comedy clubs and many others across the country. Topping off the night is Relay Madness, a fun competition by sponsors Camp Forty Acres.

Morning will bring a pancake breakfast by SADD and the closing Fight Back Ceremony. To learn more about this fun, family camp out to fight cancer, visit www.wilmingtonnrl.com.

Scantily clad man escapes from Tewksbury Police

The 'Boxer Shorts Bolter' quickly recaptured

By CHRISTINE KENNEY

TEWKSBURY - Police had to re-capture a prisoner on Sunday, June 12.

Robert Gorski, 19, of Tewksbury, had been arrested on Friday, June 10, on the basis of multiple warrants and was being held until he could be transported to court on Monday morning. However, on Sunday he managed to escape police custody. He was wearing only his boxer shorts at the time.

According to Deputy Police Chief John Voto, Gorski had intentionally plugged up the toilet in his cell with toilet paper. Lt. Chip McKenna was reportedly going to move Gorski to another cell, but when he opened the cell, Gorski managed to push McKenna and ran out of the back of the building.

He was tracked by Tewksbury's K9 Unit, including Officer Tim Kelly and his dog Ali, to behind the North Street School just about 30 minutes after his escape.

According to John Voto, Deputy Chief of the Tewksbury Police Department, Gorski pushed

Lieutenant Chip McKenna out of the way when the officer opened his cell, and then Gorski proceeded to run out the back entrance of the building. Allegedly, Gorski had clogged up his cell's toilet prior to his escape.

Gorski was held on $3,000 cash bail for the escape incident, and faces charges of escape, assault, assault and battery on a police officer, and malicious destruction of property. He is also facing bail charges equaling $2,000 for two separate pending cases, which involved larceny and assault and battery, according to Voto.

Gorski is not unknown to police. His record dates back to when he was 17, according to Voto. Gorski was arraigned on Monday and is expected in court on July 11 for a pretrial conference.

Several locals gearing up for Shriner's Football Classic

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The 33rd Annual Shriners Football Classic will take place this Friday night at Gillette Stadium with 100 of the best high school football players in the state coming together for a great night of football to benefit a great cause with all proceeds from the game going to Shriners Hospitals for Children.

Three local schools will be very well represented in the game with two players each from Shawsheen Tech and Tewksbury High along with one player from Wilmington High among those selected to play in the game.

Shawsheen's Dave Summiel of Tewksbury and Derek Bent of Billerica, along with Tewksbury High's Anthony Arcari and Sean Connolly and Wilmington High's Brian Hurley will be the local representatives on the North squad.

Rounding out the local flavor will be Shawsheen Tech coach Al Costabile, who will coach the North squad against the South squad of Norwell High's Jim Sullivan. Costabile led the Rams to the Division 4 Super Bowl championship this past season, the Rams first Super Bowl title since 1978, and he was selected to coach this game by his fellow coaches in Massachusetts Coaches Association.

"It's an honor and a privilege to be selected to coach this game," Costabile said. "I am quite honored to be a member of this staff and to be around these young men, and also to be playing a game for such a worthy cause."

Unlike some All-Star games, the players in this game were not just thrown together for a few practices before playing the game. The selection process took place from the middle January through the middle February with an orientation for the players taking place in March.

From March through the middle of May, the players embarked on a fund raising mission, helping to raise a portion of the close to $100,000 which will be donated to the Shriners after the game, with the rest of the funds coming from game revenue.

The players and coaches then spent the last two weeks of May practicing at Bentley College in a football camp to hone their skills and have been finalizing preparations over the past couple of weeks with evening practices at Bentley.

Clearly the players involved have had to show a tremendous commitment to not only football, but also to the great cause they are playing for and Costabile has been pleased to see the contributions of the five local players. He is of course most familiar with Summiel and Bent, two huge contributors to the Super Bowl title. Summiel will play tackle for the North while Bent will play tight end.

"Summiel had a great year for us and he is finishing it off with a great experience here with the Shriners game," Costabile said. "Derek has done a great job and has worked very hard at tight end for us in practice. He has done everything we have asked of him and more."

He has of course also become very familiar with the other players, particularly Arcari who will play running back, as in addition to his head coaching duties Costabile has been coaching the running backs. "Anthony is doing a really great job at running back. He is a great kid who has worked hard at every practice and if he gets a little room he could make things happen for us. He has been a great kid to coach," Costabile said. "Connolly has been doing a good job for us at the safety position."

Hurley has also wasted little time in making a great first impression on Costabile and he is confident the former Wildcat will do a great job at tight end.

"Brian has been a hard worker for us," Costabile said. "He has been working hard every night at practice and with him and Derek at tight end for us we have a great combination. They are two very good high school tight ends and we are very confident in that position."

Tickets for the game, which will kick off at 7:00 are $15 and can be purchased at the Gillette Stadium Ticket Office, at any Ticketmaster outlet or at www.ticketmaster.com or 800-745-3000. Group sales will be available through Gillette Stadium by calling 508-549-0178. All ticket proceeds benefit the Shriners Hospitals for Children.

"I am very excited for the game and everyone is looking forward to taking part in such a great event," Costabile said. "I feel very fortunate to be a part of this and to be able to participate in such a great cause."

Lentini honored at Lasell College

Six Lasell College baseball players including Wilmington native Carlton Lentini earned seven total awards from the Great Northeast Athletic Conference (GNAC).

Making ranks on the second team is Lasell's shortstop, Carlton Lentini. The junior infielder finished 4th in the conference overall in total assists with 99, also setting a new single-season record at Lasell. He finished the 2011 campaign with 35 hits, 31 runs, 19 RBI, six doubles, two home runs, eight walks, five hit-by-pitch, three sacrifice hits, and going 6-for-7 in stolen bases. Lentini hit a .310 batting average with a .378 on-base percentage for the season and had 14 multi-hit games. 39 hits, 15 RBI, six doubles, 11 walks, nine hit-by-pitch, and a .434 on-base percentage. In conference play, Stachura hit .420 with 21 hits, 14 runs, and eight RBI. He also made 69 outs in the field over the course of the season.

Wilmington resident Stephen Peterson, shown here during his collegiate days pitching at the University of Rhode Island, signed a professional contract this past weekend to pitch for the Milwaukee Brewers, and was assigned to its Single A team in Arizona. (courtesy photo/URI).

Wilmington resident assigned to A Ball

Peterson signs with the Milwaukee Brewers

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

On Saturday night, Stephen Peterson was hanging out with his girlfriend and his father. Three days later, he finished his first practice as a professional baseball player.

The 23-year-old Wilmington resident signed a Professional Baseball contract on Monday and began his first full workout with the Arizona League Brewers, the Single A Affiliate of the Milwaukee Brewers on Tuesday morning with the team's first practice held just outside of Phoenix, Arizona.

"Saturday night around 9:45 I got a call from (a Milwaukee Brewers representative) and he asked me if I had been talking to other teams and I said yes, and then he said well we are willing to offer you a contract and are you interested, and I said yes," said Peterson via phone on Tuesday afternoon.

Major League Baseball held its annual draft last Tuesday through Thursday, with 50 rounds and over 1,500 selections. Peterson wasn't one of those players selected, thus making him an undrafted free agent. He said he had conversations with several teams, but Milwaukee made the first official offer, and like any ballplayer trying to fulfill a dream, he jumped on this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"It was great and to be honest, it just took my breathe away," he said. "It's what I've wanted to my entire life and for it to come full circle is just incredible."

Peterson grew up in Wilmington and attended St. John's Prep in Danvers. He had a brilliant career for the Prep, never losing a decision, and going 8-0 with an 1.00 ERA as a senior, which included being named a Boston Herald All-Scholastic and the Division 1 North tournament MVP. He also was 2-0 with an ERA under 1.00 as a junior.

After his senior year in high school, he earned a full athletic scholarship to pitch at Marist College in Poughkeepsie, New York. In 2007, he appeared in 13 games, started 11 and finished with a 3-3 record and a 4.77 ERA throwing 54.2 innings. In 2008, he pitched in 12 games, started nine and finished with a 1-5 record. In 2009, he transferred to Rhode Island University and sat out that athletic season. Then in September of that year he had "Tommy John" surgery on his left elbow, and came back at 100 percent exactly a year later.

This past spring season, he was a perfect 6-0 for Rhode Island, pitching in the Atlantic-10 Conference. He tossed two complete game shut outs, and led the team in ERA at 3.06. He also led the team in strikeouts with 69, held batters to a lowly .231 batting average and earned All-Conference and All-New England honors. Then at the annual New England Intercollegiate Baseball All-Star game played at LeLacheur Park in Lowell, he was named the Pitcher of the Game, after allowing just one hit over two scoreless innings.

"I knew that scouts had been looking at me at different games, but (the Brewers representative) said that he last saw me at that All-Star game," he said.

So from that game until Saturday it was waiting time for Peterson. But hanging out Saturday night, he got that phone call, and it's believed that he is now the fifth Wilmington resident since the 1960s, all pitchers, to play professional baseball, following Rick Froton, Jeff Williamson, Jason Bere and Mike Alonardo (Tex Johnston and several others played before the 1960s). Froton pitched two seasons for the Red Sox Minor League team Wellsville in 1963-64 compiling a 12-9 record. Williamson pitched three seasons between Single A and Double AA with the Baltimore Orioles Affiliate, first in Miami and then in Forth Worth, Dallas, compiling a 24-25 record. Jason Bere is the only Wilmington resident to reach the majors, as he pitched 11 years with five different teams, finishing with a 71-65 career record, including going 24-7 in his first two years. He now works in the Cleveland Indians organization. Alonardo pitched for Greenville of the Independent League during the 1998 season, and he finished with a 4-4 record.

Peterson has yet to throw a professional pitch, but is tickled pink to have the chance to do so when the Arizona Single A season begins on Monday.

"(Tuesday) was our first practice so everything is just so surreal," he said. "I got the call, flew out here, and now I'm taking the field so now I just have to realize that it's go-time. I have an opportunity to fulfill my life long dream and I'm going to do whatever it takes to be successful, to get better and hopefully move up the ladder."

Peterson said that he has yet to meet his coach and obviously has yet to be told what kind of role he'll have with the team, whether a starter or as a reliever. But the left hander said that he was hitting between 87-88 consistently on the radar gun this season, with sometimes getting 90 or 91. He also throws two different breaking balls and a change-up.

"(Tuesday) was basically check in with the doctors and get medically cleared and stuff like that," he said. "The team is still waiting to sign other guys and we're still waiting for other guys to fly in, so I'll meet the guys (and coaches) and we'll obviously do a lot more during the week. But I'll just wait for them to tell me my role - I don't care if it's a starter or as a reliever. I'm going to do whatever it takes to be successful - I'm just going to work as hard as I can."

Since coming back from his surgery, Peterson admitted that he's a much different pitcher. That showed with his stats from this past season at Rhode Island.

"I finally felt like I'm back to 100 percent," he said. "It's the best I've felt in a long time. I feel like I'm stronger, quicker, and I have more stamina. I remember a couple of years ago before the surgery, two or three days after games, I would be sore, but now my recovery time is much faster."

Peterson had that 6-0 mark this season playing for Jim Foster, the coach at Rhode Island.

"I couldn't be happier for Stephen," said head coach Foster on the program's website. "He proved to be an integral part of our weekend rotation this year and is very deserving of this opportunity."

Peterson is the seventh Rhode Island baseball player to sign with an MLB team under Foster's guidance. Last year, Tim Boyce was selected by the Seattle Mariners following a 2009 season where Eric Smith (Arizona), Nick Greenwood (San Diego), Dan Rhault (Tampa Bay) and Luke Demko (San Francisco) were all taken in the Draft. Zach Zaneski signed with the Texas Rangers in 2008 while the New York Mets selected Steve Holmes in 2006. Now Peterson will get his professional career going in the next week or so.

"People have asked me if this has set in yet and to be honest, I don't know if it has hit me yet," he said. "I mean I did little league and all of that and I always dreamed of being a professional ballplayer like every other kid. So the realization that it's happening is pretty crazy. I know I'm going to cherish it as long as I can, and do whatever I can with this opportunity."

Wilmington High Sub-Varsity Sports Round-Up

By LAUREN SPENCER
Sports Correspondent

It's hard to tell that Wilmington's Freshman Baseball team had as successful of a season as they did, just by peeking at their statistics.

Their 7-9 record doesn't do them much justice, but head coach Dennis Ingram marked this past spring's season a complete success for different reasons than just how many wins his team earned.

"That record does not tell the success that we had this season," the first year coach said. "When we're on the freshman level, we have a bigger goal than just wins and losses. Our ultimate goal is to try to get better very single day so we can eventually get up to that next level, whether it be the JV or the varsity level. On the whole, we had a successful season."

The Wildcats saw a lot of talent coming in to their program, but the lack of consistency as well as high school baseball experience, also left the team with lots of room for improvement.

"This was a talented group of kids," said Ingram. "There was one freshman that I didn't even get to see. When try-outs started he went straight up to the varsity. Then there was another freshman that I only had for ten games, and then he went up to the varsity. At the end of the year, two more kids got called up to the JV team, so overall it was a strong group of kids."

Seeing time on the pitcher's mound for the team included Kevin Keane, Jimmy Murphy, Sean Coakley, Ryan McEvoy, Jared Walsh, Mike Curtis, Vinny Poli, and Troy Vibert, who all saw time in other multiple positions. Brendan McDonough, Jimmy Murphy, Jacob Pumpfhret, Chris Popa saw most of their time in the outfield, while, Jimmy Davey and Sam D'Angelo played the corner infield positions, while, Ryan Carrocino played shortstop, Adam Coccoluto was at second. Alexander Pizette split time between shortstop and outfield and Curtis also saw time at catcher.

While the team started out with a few tough losses, one big win really shifted the Wildcats' trends.

"It seemed like the biggest thing we battled with all year was the weather," told Ingram. "It seemed like every day was cold, damp, and rainy. The first game it was really nice out was on a Friday afternoon. We were playing Amesbury [at home]. We were down early in the game, but battled back and it was the nicest day that the spring gave us at that point moving forward. We tied it up in the last inning, and I had to pull the other coach and talk to the umpires to see what we wanted to do. We knew they had a long ride, 'do you want to keep playing, do you want to call it a tie, what do you want to do?'"

Ingram said that everyone was in agreement that the game should keep playing, even the umpires. They ended up playing 13 innings. The game got over at eight o'clock at night. The Wildcats ended up winning by one run on a walk-off wild pitch.

"It was one of those days where you were just really happy to be involved with what you're doing," Ingram said. "Everyone was down there having a good time, the coaches, the umpires, and the players. So that was a really nice moment."

"Before that game, we lost a couple games in a row and I think the boys were starting to get a little down on themselves so after that game we kind of rolled a little bit and we picked up some speed and we won a couple games in a row. So that was a really nice confidence builder for the boys."

Another one of the team's greatest accomplishments was the improvements they made. Ingram said that one of their major improvements was playing a complete game.

"I would say this a lot and I would remind the boys I'm not insulting them, but we're not good enough to just show up and play for three innings and then kind of sit back on our heels for the rest of the game," he said. "So what we definitely improved on and worked on and got better on every single day was playing a full game, a full seven innings, not taking any pitches off, not taking any innings off, and by the end of the season you could definitely see an improvement with the boys paying attention, being involved in the game for every single pitch, and as they start to learn that, that will help them progress throughout high school baseball."

Some of the Wildcat standouts this season were McDonough, Davey, Carrocino and Pizette.

"The freshman MVP was Brendan McDonough," said Ingram. "He actually only played ten games with the freshmen. He moved up to the JV and then he went up to the varsity and ended up starting centerfield for the remainder of the season and into the state tournament."

"Jimmy Davey, Ryan Carrocino and Alexander Pizette were the three kids who led us offensively throughout the whole season. All three of those people batted above .300 and offensive leaders for the whole season."

Although this was Ingram's first year coaching baseball at Wilmington High School, he had previously coached at Medford High School for four years. He said that this group of athletes really made for a great first season for him.

"It was great. It was all that I could ask for. You always look to get a group of kids who are willing to commit themselves to the season, commit themselves to getting better, and really accept that process and I couldn't have asked for anything better."

And as this group of freshmen moves on to higher levels of baseball in the years to come, Ingram is confident they will continue to improve and excel.

"I think they'll do very well. I think especially with moving from the Cape Ann League to the Middlesex League, the talent will be more widespread with the opponents and I think Wilmington will be doing just fine in baseball."

FRESHMEN SOFTBALL

A year of growth and development usually characterizes freshmen sports teams, but when the players come together to make great improvements as the season progresses, that's what marks it a success.

That was the story line for Wilmington High's Freshmen Softball team this spring. They started out in the learning process, but they made great improvements as time progressed and finished with a 6-8-1 record.

Coach Mike Maloney was very pleased with his team's progress.

"I think it was a good season. We had some growing pains, but I thought as the year went on we improved consistently right up to the end of the season," he said.

The group started out with some raw talent, but had some trouble combining it all into a team effort.

"We had a good group of freshmen," the fourth-year coach said. "One girl played on the varsity, and three played on the junior varsity, but we had a good team. It was a very talented class in terms of how they project in the future. We had a little bit of a tough time putting it all together at times, and we had far too many walks but there were definitely a lot of girls who were versatile in their talent."

But as the year when on, the team started making improvements in various places, and in time, it all started to come together.

"The pitchers, as the year went on, settled down," said Maloney. "We did pretty well all year. Our defense improved as the pitching improved, and that was big for us."

And after that, they really started to win some big games.

"Our biggest win was [when] we beat North Reading, who had a very good team," said Maloney. "They had a very good pitcher. We were actually down by eight runs, but we came back and took the lead and then we held them off in the last inning to no runs. It was a very exciting game."

Maloney said that among his team standouts was Catherine McKenna.

"Offensively, we were lead most of the year by Catherine McKenna," he said. "She did great, she hit the ball, and she had a couple home runs. She had a very good year."

"Certainly, Marissa Russo

[stood out], she came in and pitched for us at the end of the year. She did a great job. [And also], Jillian Williams was also very good for us. She hit lead-off, pitched and played second [base]."

But overall, Maloney said he enjoyed coaching every player, and had a real great season with this group of athletes.

"They were a great group with a good attitude," he said. "They wanted to get better. They came to learn every day and weren't satisfied and that's why they got better."

And as they continue to improve and grow as players, their futures look bright.

"I think they'll do great as long as they keep working and have that positive attitude," Maloney said.

JV SOFTBALL

When many individual talents are combined into one strong team effort, it usually makes for successful circumstances. This spring, the Wilmington High JV girls' softball team proved that to be very true.

The Wildcats, lead by coach Marcia Jones, played with a team-first attitude, and ended up with an 18-2 record to show for it.

"This group of girls was awesome," the fourth-year coach said. "I had so much fun coaching them. They all were very willing to learn and play wherever they were needed. They all did what was best for the team. With a record of 18-2 I think we did great. The girls played every game with so much heart."

Such a successful season didn't come without any hard work, however.

"The girls improved each and every day," said Jones. "They came to practice everyday and to the games giving one hundred percent. I couldn't ask any more from them. I had girls that played positions that they had never played before and did an awesome job adjusting to the changes and with no complaining. Again, they did what was best for the team."

The team's roster included freshmen Cassie Grasso (catcher), Sara Ennis (first base) and Danielle Reynolds (third base), as well as sophomores Megan

Jones had many positive things to say about all of her players. She believed that all of their combined efforts were what made for such a successful year.

"Meg Howland pitched in every game and she had three shutouts," she said. "In one of her shut outs, she had 13 strikeouts. Lauren McKenna had a total of five home runs, one of them being a grand slam. Alex Derian also had a grand slam along with six triples." "The outfield was made up of Katie MacDougall, Kelsey Mangan and Jacqui Duffy, all three played very strong defensively. Alliy Gemerello was very strong at shortstop. Getting on base almost every time up at bat were Sara Ennis and Danielle Reynolds, with Cassie Grasso showing her bunting and slapping skills. Jackie Parece had a very hot bat this season."

With 18 wins, it was difficult to choose just a few that highlighted the season. While the Wildcats were consistent in putting together solid team efforts game in and game out, every game became special to their season.

"All of our games stand out for different reasons," said Jones. "I am so proud of each and every one of my girls. They played so well together as a team. If someone was having a bad day, the rest of the team would work together to bring them up. They are just such a special group of young ladies and I am very fortunate to have had the pleasure of coaching them and getting to know them."

Jones really enjoyed working with this group of athletes this season, and is confident in their future successes as well.

"We had a fantastic season. [This was] one of the best groups of girls I have ever coached. My girls kept me laughing every day. I think whoever moves up to varsity will do excellent. They all will contribute in their own special ways."

JV BOYS LAX

Starting out with few numbers and a predominantly young team, it would have been easy for the Wilmington JV boys' lacrosse team to give up right then.

But instead, they did the exact opposite. Lead by coach Dave Sundberg, the Wildcats made great strides and improvements, making for an overall successful spring season.

Considering their disadvantages, Sundberg said he marked the successes of their season by the improvements they made as a team, rather than the scores of any games or their overall season record.

"The season was a success. It was a success [but] it was a challenge for the guys. We had small numbers, and some kids playing for the first time," the second year coach said.

"There were kids playing for the first time who were put in some challenging positions. It was good. They improved a ton. I told the kids I cared more about us improving than I did about our record, but I still think we were about .500. We were about 6-8 on the season."

This year's junior varsity squad was largely made up by freshmen and sophomores, although the varsity and junior varsity were both very young. There were only two seniors in the whole program. A lot of the program's sophomores saw time at the varsity level, as did a few of the freshmen.

"[A lot of] the sophomore class that would the JV team would usually be lucky to use, were up playing varsity, which contributed to their lack of numbers a lot of the time. We had very little numbers," remarked Sundberg. "There were a couple games we actually played without [substitutes], which is a phenomenal accomplishment for a lacrosse player."

Among some of the team's other greatest accomplishments was a big overtime win against Newburyport.

"Newburyport is very good," said Sundberg. "The varsity was either first or second in the league, and their JV is very good. We beat them in overtime, and it was Dylan DiNatale that scored the overtime winning goal."

Sundberg added that considering some of the growing pains the team struggled with, a big win like that was a real big confidence booster.

"Every time we started to get down we'd pull a win out somewhere so it was good. [Even though I] tell them all they have to worry about is getting better and not about the scoreboard, it helped. They did need that positive reinforcement, not just from me, but also from winning a couple games."

In addition to DiNatale, a sophomore attack for the Wildcats, the team was made up of five other sophomores, three juniors, and five freshmen. The remaining sophomores included Arthur Papastathis and Tim Penney, who both played attack, defender Kevin Dunfey, the team's lone goalkeeper, Stan Dancewicz, and Brandon Wong, who played middle.

The juniors for the Wildcats included two defenders, Tyler Trites and Robert Sutera, as well as Kevin Burke, who played middle. Chris Jackson was a freshman attack, along with freshmen defenders Avery Woodbury and Dave Caira. Cody McGowan and Scott Mangaelli were the team's freshmen middies.

Sundberg said that working with such a young group was a great challenge both for him, and for his players.

"It really forced them to grow up and become mature and to learn how to play through certain things and to walk away from situations because we couldn't handle penalties, we couldn't handle different things like that. So the kids had to realize that if they got a penalty, they were hurting the other nine guys that were out there playing hard. It was a cool challenge."

He added that he really liked coaching this group of kids and especially enjoyed watching them grow as players.

"It was a neat group of kids that grew up. In the beginning they just had one thing in mind, they just wanted to play a physical game, and by the end they were actually playing the game of lacrosse, which was cool."

And from a coaching standpoint, that's what it was all about.

"The kids made it worth it by coming every day," said Sundberg. "We struggled on getting kids to come and different things like that, but once we got a team and everything settled down, the kids really made a commitment and it was good. It makes it all worth it."

But after a year of growth and development, the future looks bright for this group of young lacrosse players.

"This sophomore class moving up and this junior class have a lot of potential. They're definitely going to be fun to watch," said Sundberg.

JV GIRLS LAX

A 3-10 record doesn't usually indicate a successful lacrosse season, but that wasn't the case for Wilmington High's JV girls' lacrosse team this spring.

Starting out as an inexperienced squad, they gained confidence and skill as the season progressed, and made large improvements, which was really all that mattered to head coach Maureen O'Mara and the Wildcats.

"I would say that it went pretty well, considering the fact that we were a team that had some returning players, we had some players that were pretty new to the team, and just kind of getting them to gel a little bit, it was kind of hard for them to all be in the same place, but really did once we got to midseason," the second-year coach said.

"It's one of those seasons where our record wasn't great, but it really doesn't reflect how far the team came. We had a couple games where we only lost by a goal."

The Wildcat squad varied largely in both age and experience. They had a few strong younger players, and also some older girls who were completely new to the sport.

"It was kind of spread out. We had a senior who had never played the sport before, she came out and played this year because she wanted to do something different which was kind of fun," said O'Mara. "We had a mix of different players who were kind of swingers between varsity and JV. I would say more of the bulk was from the sophomore class, but it was definitely a mixed bag."

This lack of consistency throughout the team brought about some negative results in games in the beginning of the year, but the strides they made by the end of the season were what marked it a successful one.

"I would definitely say that if we had some players that weren't as new, I think that our record definitely would have been better," O'Mara said. "That definitely had a lot to do with it. But there were moments when I would look at them and there were a couple of girls at the beginning of the season who were brand new, they didn't even understand the whole idea of cradling and all that stuff, and by the end of the season you would not have known that they had just walked out to a lacrosse field at the beginning of the year."

But as they gained more experience, they made lots of improvements and the girls began to come together as a team.

"For the girls that were brand new developing the basic skills, they really kind of improved," said O'Mara. "For girls that had played before, really picking up on more of the play aspect of it, and improving the communication piece of it [was good]. Half the girls I coached last season and it was really nice to see how much they grew. They all came with a good attitude. Once we kind of got it together a little bit, sometimes we were a little slow to start, but once we got it together, they were in it."

And with all the improvements they made, they ended up finding success in doing so.

"There are three games [of the season] that really stand out; ironically, they're our three wins," said O'Mara. "The first game that we actually won, we played Tewksbury at home, and it was raining and it had been a back and forth game. They're a pretty physical team and our girls pretty much kept up with them. We had the lead with less than a minute to go, and Tewksbury came down on us and our defense held off, our goalie was great, and we ended up winning by one goal. So that was pretty exciting, plus it was our first win so that was kind of fun."

Another big win came against North Reading around the middle of the season. O'Mara said that this was probably the team's best-balanced game of the year.

"That's when I really saw them gel together and just their passing was great, their communication was great, it was all the way from attack all the way to the defense and the goalie. It was a terrific game; they did such a great job."

The Wildcats mainly consisted of one senior, five juniors, six sophomores, and two freshmen. The lone senior was Stephanie Heatley-Quinlan, who played attack. The juniors included Courtney Collins, who played center midfield, Kassie Madore, who was very versatile for the team all season, midfielders Lauren Stalker and Shelley Sullivan, and defender Mary To.

The team's sophomores were defenders Kiley Burke, Megan Priem and Amie Serino, midfielder Kayla Falter and attackers Ashley DeFuria and Melissa O'Donoghue. The freshmen were midfielders Jocelyn Cornish and Hannah Paoletti.

The team also featured six players who played for both the varsity and junior varsity teams. They were senior goalie Emily O'Donoghue, sophomore midfielders, Brittany Cavanaugh, Janelle Celeste, attacker Emily Colosimo and goalie Casey Herra. Caroline Robarge, a freshman attack and center midfielder, also rotated between the two teams.

Some of the standouts for the Wildcats were Robarge and Cavanaugh.

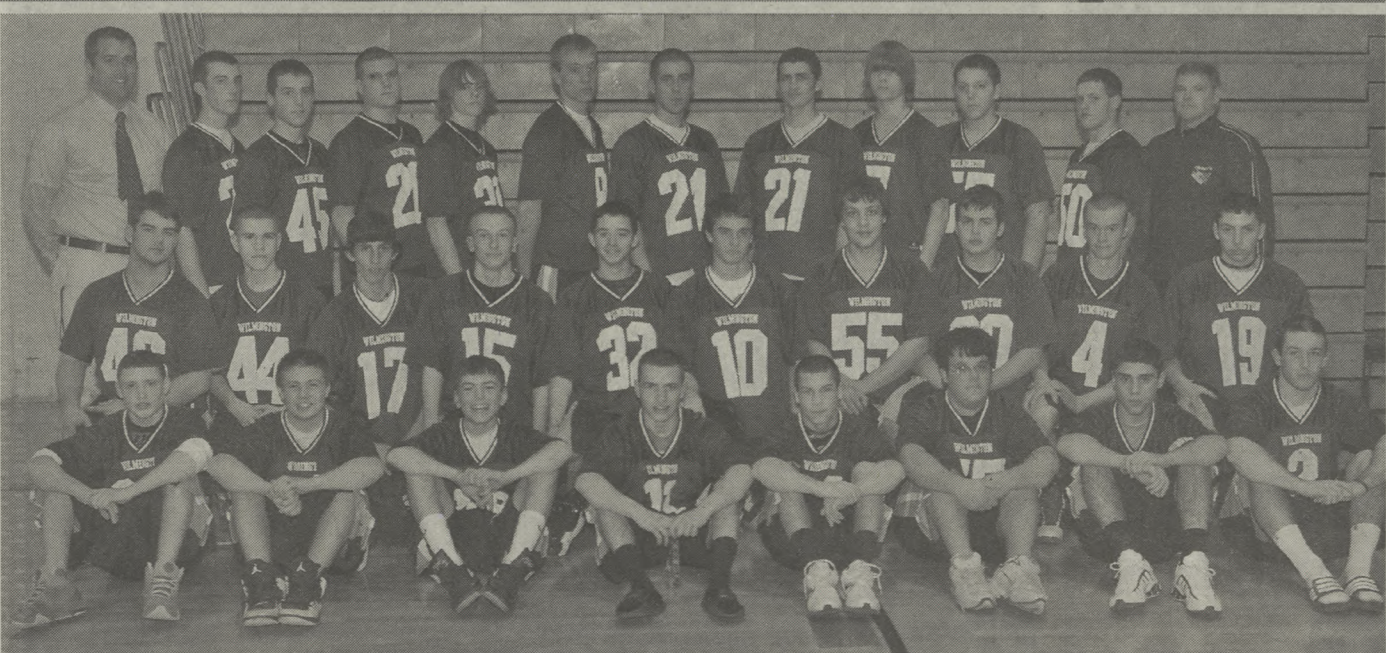

"[Robarge], was a freshman who often switched between varsity and JV this year. She scored 14 goals for the JV team this season. "She scored six of her goals when we beat Lynnfield," said O'Mara. "That was pretty impressive. From one game to the next, you could just see the intensity that she brought so that was pretty fun to watch."

Cavanaugh scored eight goals this season. "She was new to lacrosse at Wilmington High," O'Mara said. "She did a great job too. Then we had three other girls with six goals each, so it was nice to kind of see them spreading the wealth out a little bit."

But overall, O'Mara really enjoyed coaching this group of athletes, and was awfully proud of the growth they showed throughout the year.

"They were a good group of girls. The really were a great group of girls, and they definitely kept me laughing, that's for sure. I never quite knew what to expect."

"I would say overall they all really did a nice job this season. What's nice is that they're really starting to think lacrosse. A couple of the girls who played JV who were newer to the sport [have come up to me] and [asked] if there were any camps they could go to this summer to get better. To me, that just says so much about how far the team really came. Not that they didn't want to get better in the beginning, but we definitely had a lot to build off of from this season."

Rams eliminated by two-time state champs

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

LOWELL – With only two active seniors on the opening day roster, it was difficult to know what to expect from the Shawsheen Tech softball team this season. Although they had certainly established a tradition of excellence in recent years, coach Maureen Buckley knew she would have to rely on a team made up primarily of freshman and sophomores if they were going to continue that tradition.

As it turns out, the young group of Lady Rams had no trouble at all in continuing the tradition, as Shawsheen captured their fourth straight Commonwealth Athletic Conference Upper Division championship and won a pair of tournament games before finally being eliminated last Wednesday by two time defending state champion St. Mary's in the Division 3 North semi-final at Martin Field in Lowell.

The Lady Rams clearly exceeded all expectations, which is perhaps why Buckley, while obviously disappointed to see her team's season end in the 8-5 loss to St. Mary's, was able to look back on the season with a great deal of pride.

"I am thrilled with the way the season went," Buckley said. "I would have loved to have seen us go further, but to lose to a team like St. Mary's and to accomplish all we did this season was very impressive, especially for such a young team."

It was a difficult loss for the Lady Rams to St. Mary's as they had jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning and extended their advantage to 5-0 before St. Mary's scored six runs in the bottom of the fourth to take the lead before tacking on a couple of insurance runs in the sixth inning to account for the final.

The third seeded Lady Rams finished their season with an 18-7 overall record, while St. Mary's improved to 21-2 and went on to capture the sectional title with a win over Winthrop on Monday.

Shawsheen was led by an outstanding game from senior Kristina Lees of Wilmington in the final game of her career. Lees had two doubles and a triple in the losing effort, and drove in a run in the big first inning, while sophomore Arianna Medeiros of Tewksbury also had a huge game with a double that drove in two runs in the first inning.

In the big St. Mary's sixth inning, some sloppy play by the Lady Rams turned what could have been a somewhat damaging inning into a disaster, and Shawsheen went from holding a commanding lead to trailing the game in the blink of an eye. It was an inning that the young Lady Rams will learn from and be better for next season.

"We had a bit of a meltdown. It's difficult with a young team like we have not to get rattled and to have the confidence to put a mistake behind you, even if it was not your individual mistake," Buckley said. "We need to have that that confidence and maturity and I think we will have more of that next year."

But before looking ahead to next year, Buckley took a moment to look back on this year, particularly on the three seniors who helped lead the team. Only two of the seniors were active, with Lees and Brooke Mallahan of Tewksbury leading the way on the field, but fellow senior Allyson Trayah of Tewksbury was also instrumental in leading the team despite missing the entire season with an injury.

"Ally was a huge part of our team even though she was unable to play," Buckley said. I can't say enough about the work she did at practices working with the kids at and keeping the younger kids up during games on the bench.

"She went from being a huge contributor on the field the last three years to a huge contributor off the field this season. She is welcome to come back here and coach any time."

Center fielder Mallahan and third baseman Lees were also big reasons why the Lady Rams were able to be so successful this season.

"Brooke did a fabulous job for us with a young outfield. She tracked down balls all over the field. She also did a great job for us at bat, hitting .359. She leads by her behavior and we needed that leadership this year," Buckley said. "And Kristina had a great season for us at the plate. She did a great job as our number three hitter of setting up our number four hitter. We will definitely miss her."

The three seniors all had amazing careers, as they went 52-3 in CAC play during their four years, winning four CAC titles and one state vocational championship.

While the seniors will be sorely missed, Buckley also knows that the good news for her team is that her young group of players including sophomore pitchers Meghan Walsh and Emily Hamilton, along with many other young players like freshmen Danielle Cacciola and Emily Knoops, sophomores Medeiros, Stephanie Champoux and Meredith Bonugli, and juniors Charlene Sullivan, Franny Pesantes and Jen Curtis will all be back next year. And not only will the strong core group be back, but more importantly they will have gained another year of experience of playing in big games at the varsity level.

"Absolutely that will help us. With all of the tournament games and big games they played in, they got a tremendous amount of experience that they can bring into next season," Buckley said. "I am looking forward to picking up where we left off and continuing the tradition that the seniors have started."

Youth Softball, Little League wrap up

U12 Softball:

It was a perfect evening for softball as U12 Pink topped the U12 Blue team. It was a great combined pitching performance by Pink lead by fire baller Logan MacDonald. Blue was able to produce one big inning to keep the game close. Leading the way was Katie Newton with two big hits. Also contributing with there play in the field was Sara Bray and Ellen Klucznik. Starting pitcher Katie Stevens keep Blue close for most of the game. But Pinks slugger Brianna Kumm, lived up to her nick name smashing the ball all over the field and Kayla Martin also chipped in with two hits.

It was a beautiful spring evening for a softball game as U12 Blue took on U12 Red. It was a back and forth battle with Blue prevailing in the end. Reds attack was lead by the great hitting of Katie Colombo and minor league call up Antonia Kieran. Also contributing to the attack was Allison Sullivan, who reached base five times. Blues hitting attack was lead by Jennifer Tague, Julianna Rosa, and Samantha Grasso. Melanie Raimo also contributed with stellar play in the field.

The U12 Blue team battled a very strong U12 Purple team right to the end, but they were just too much for Blue and they ended up on the losing end of this battle. Leading the way for Purple was the dynamic dual pitching of Makayla Donahue and Jennifer Dovidio. They also had a very potent hit attack that was lead by Brianna Dussault and Samantha Pitz. Blue tried there best to keep the game close with first time pitchers Rose Rose and Jamie Stone, who both did a great job. Jamie had a great all around game with two big hits to go along with some great fielding. Madison Knibbs dazzled everyone with an unbelievable play at short and Jackie Fraser also made a great catch in the out field.

Major League Baseball:

A's 4, Red Sox 1

The Red Sox struck early in the top of the first when Matt Ametola lead off with a walk followed by three straight hits by Dom Malatesta, Darren MacEachern and Ryan Arbuckle. In relief TJ Prior was able to strike out the last two batters leaving the bases loaded.

The A's answered right back in the bottom of the bottom of the inning when Danny Gracia blasted his first career home run over the left field fence. The A's added another run in the second when Michael Ducharme and Tommy Worob led off with hits. With one out and the bases loaded Pat Dunfey came up with a sacrifice fly scoring the eventual game winning RBI.

In the third the A's would strike again for two more runs. David Silva lead off with a hit. After a walk and the batters advancing to 2nd. and 3rd on a wild pitch, Cam Walsh singled home both runs. Michael Ducharme and Danny Gracia each pitched shut out innings to finish this rain soaked affair. Robbie DuCharme was outstanding again behind the plate.

Darren MacEachern pitched well in all three innings for the Red Sox.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

The White Sox rallied for three runs in the sixth inning with the clutch hitting of Brendan Thorpe, Cam Pickett, and David Bailey and the booming triple of Collin Murphy. Conner MacKenzie pitched the first three innings for the Sox, allowing three runs in the first, and shutting the Twins out in the second and third.

Sean Higgins, came in relief in the fourth, and the big southpaw struck out seven in three innings, while not allowing a hit or a run. Sean was in a groove, and only threw 35 pitches in these three innings.

Little League wrap up

Justin Kannally was equally as strong for the Twins, pitching five strong innings, allowing only one hit, one run, while striking out 11. Kanally, Ben Maynard, and Kyle Ritson, collected the three Twins hits.

Orioles 3, A's 2 (9 innings)
Quinton Foley hit a leadoff home run in the bottom of the ninth inning for a dramatic Orioles win over the A's. This game was originally stopped due to darkness after eight innings, but was continued on Sunday June 12th.

Nick Rufo shut down the A's in the top of the ninth inning, before Foley's home run. The A's received great pitching from both Bobby Lord and Danny Gracia. The Orioles pitchers included Edmond DeAngelis, Justin Collins, and Rufo. Other Orioles hitters included Billy McEvoy and Jonathan Sears. Robbie and Michael Ducharme (2 hits each), and David Silveria all had hits for the A's.

A's 7, Orioles 6

The A's came out on top with two runs in the sixth inning to get the win and solidified themselves as co-champs of the major league regular season. Michael Ducharme had the big hit for the A's with a two out single to right field, scoring the tying and winning runs. Cam Walsh (2 hits), Danny Gracia, Cooper May, Robbie Ducharme, and TJ Prior all had hits for the A's.

Justin Collins hit a two run home run for the Orioles in the top of the sixth and reached base four times. Russell Abbott, Billy McEvoy, Matt Rideout, and Alex Frye all had hits for the Orioles.

Wildcat U15-1 Lax team wins close game

The Wilmington Wildcats Youth Lacrosse U-15 Blue team won a nail-biter against Wakefield in their season finale by a score of 3-2. Wilmington never trailed in the game but also never had more than a one goal lead at any time in the contest. Pat Mcfall scored two goals on the day to lead the offensive attack while John Irizarry was solid in goal allowing only two goals while making seven saves on the day.

The game began as a defensive battle with neither team able to score an early goal. Nick Silva opened the scoring for Wilmington midway through the first quarter with a beautiful goal off a pass from Zach Leighton. Wakefield came back to tie the game at 1-1 and that is how the first half ended. The Wilmington defense, led by Liam Bennett, Randy Cookinham, Austin Ferreira and Kyle Nelson stifled the high scoring Wakefield offense for most of the first half. Additionally, the Wilmington midfield led by Steven DeFuria, Jomikeson Beray, Mark DeRosa, Antonio Larfarello and Michael Daly played strong both offensively and defensively for the Wildcats.

Each team scored a goal in the third quarter. Mcfall scored his first of two goals to give Wilmington a 2-1 lead but after giving up a goal late in the third quarter, the teams began the fourth quarter knotted at two goals apiece.

The Wilmington attack was solid in the fourth quarter. The attack, led by Leighton, Michael Marcinkowski, Joseph Schuurman, Andy Lesperance and Mike Danciewicz controlled possession for most of the quarter. Midway through the quarter, Mcfall scored his second goal of the game to give Wilmington a 3-2 lead and thanks to outstanding defense, that's how the score remained with Wilmington coming out on top.

For the season, DeFuria lead all goal scorers with tencos and Zach Leighton finished second in scoring with eight goals. Silva and Mcfall are finished tied for third in scoring with seven goals apiece. Other multiple goal scorers included Marcinkowski with four goals and Schuurman and Beray with two goals apiece. Lesperance, Ferreira, Martignetti, and Larfarello have all scored a goal for the Wildcats. Wilmington was especially dominant in face-off's thanks to the play of long-stick midfielder Austin Ferreira, and middies Nick Silva, Steven DeFuria and Pat Mcfall winning a staggering 62 out of 85 faceoff's for the season for a staggering 73% face-off percentage. Defensively, the Wildcats have been solid. Irizarry finished the season with 61 saves, allowed only 28 goals in seven games for a stellar 4.0 goals against average.

FARMERS

at Spence Farm

By GORDON VINCENT

The new Farmers Market at Spence Farm in Woburn has been operating for the past two weeks, and the early reviews are extraordinarily positive.

The Farmers Market will be held every Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. through Oct. 23. About two dozen vendors from throughout the region have been on hand for the first two outings, selling their wares like grass-fed meats, free range eggs, and vegetables that are grown either organically or with integrated pest management.

"The first goal from when the city bought the property was to make arrangements for a Farmers Market," said Paul Medeiros, a member of the Woburn Agricultural Committee.

Most of the vendors are from the western part of Massachusetts, and according to Medeiros were attracted by Woburn's proximity.

"We're happy with the selection we've been able to offer and the vendors are happy with the location," said Medeiros. "One of the great selling points of Woburn commercially is it's right near two of the major highways in the state."

"Some of the merchants have sold out pretty quickly the first two weeks," he added. "They're happy they don't have to take it back with them."

The city purchased the 7.6-acre "farm stand" portion of the former Spence Farm at the intersection of Wyman and Lowell streets in the Central Square area in August 2010. Woburn exercised the first right of refusal for the property from the Spence family because the land had been taxed at a lower agricultural rate.

The Spence family had operated the farm for about 70 years prior to the sale. Had the city not purchased the land, it likely would have been sold to a local builder, Melanson Development, who planned to construct single-family homes on the site.

(The same developer is attempting to purchase and build on a second, smaller parcel of the Spence property. The proposal is currently before the Woburn Planning Board.)

Mayor Scott Galvin quickly formed the Woburn Agricultural Committee to explore possible uses for the site, which still includes the original farm stand building.

CHECKING OUT A BEESWAX CANDLE FROM THE "LAZY BEE RANCH" on Winn Street in Burlington is Stephen Delarue of Woburn, at the Farmers Market at Spence Farm. Delarue ended up buying some of the local honey. The Farmers Market at Spence Farm is now open on Sundays from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., through October 23. The market features an array of vendors who sell items like flowers, produce, soaps and lotions, honey, jewelry and carpentry.

One of the first events was a fall festival last October, and subsequently there have been blood drives, recycling collection through the Medeiros Crew organization, a Conservation Day in May, and pilates classes through Galvin's "Be Well Woburn" health initiative, but the signature event will be the weekly Farmers Market.

Later this year, there will be an Octoberfest event.

The Woburn Agricultural Commission consists of Robert Carley, Michael Benenate, Timothy Mooney, Joseph Patrissi and Medeiros. According to Medeiros "Galvin has been heavily involved with what goes on at the farm since the city bought it."

"And the Parks Dept. and the DPW were instrumental," added Medeiros. "They worked hard to set everything up."

There are also about a dozen volunteers who have sacrificed their time assisting with the events at Spence Farm, including the Farmers Market.

So far, the reviews have been favorable.

"I'm very impressed with what the agricultural committee has been able to organize," said State Rep. James Dwyer, D-Woburn, who also lives in the neighborhood. "They've also been very receptive to the neighbors' concerns about traffic. They were able to take 25, 30 or 40 cars and park them in back of the building, so the impact was very minimal."

"I give them a lot of credit, and I think the first two weeks have gone, very, very well," added Dwyer.

Last weekend's event was marred by inclement weather - mostly drizzle, but it didn't seem to bother many of the vendors who still opted to set up outside. The vendors pay either $300 for a seasonal pass or $25 per week to participate in the Farmers Market.

"There's been a lot of interest," said Medeiros. "We can probably fit about 50 vendors. We haven't run out of space for them yet, but that's a problem we're hoping to have."

This weekend, a vintner may make his debut at the market (pending a License Commission vote Thursday). State law requires him to sell wines only after noon, but the organizers are hoping wine will be a big draw.

There are, of course, attractions for children, including hay rides and a petting zoo that right now only includes mini-horses, but may be expanded to include other furry critters.

There is also live entertainment. Two local bands - one which performs current hits and the other that caters to a

Movie Reviews

"SUPER 8" A SCI-FI THRILLER

"SUPER 8" IS A PERIOD sci-fi thriller produced by Steven Spielberg and writer/director J.J. Abrams. In the film there is a mysterious train crash in a small Ohio town in the late 70s. The film works wonderfully until the big 'reveal' at the end is already guessed by the audience.

"SUPER 8"

One of the more anticipated movies of the summer, 'Super 8' harkens back to movies like 'The Goonies' or 'E.T.', which celebrated the mysteries of childhood as much as the elements of danger and the unknown featured in their plots.

In 'Super 8', writer/director J.J. Abrams teams with producer Steven Spielberg for a period sci-fi thriller set in the late '70s, and centering on a mysterious train crash in a small Ohio town.

In the summer of 1979, a group of young friends are filming a Super-8 movie when a pickup truck derails a speeding train. When the locals start to disappear and even the inquisitive deputy can't come up with answers, suspicions emerge that the incident was anything but an accident.

As the truth finally begins emerge, no one is prepared to learn what now stalks the unsuspecting citizens of this once quiet community.

The kids are shooting a zombie movie with their Super 8 camera. They set up their camera one night near a local rail yard, a move the film's director (Riley Griffiths) hopes will boost the production values on his flick. But in the middle of the shoot a train derails, sending the kids running for cover.

But was this merely a terrible accident, or did someone - or something - cause the train to derail in such spectacular fashion?

Soon, unexplained events start happening in the kids' town. Dogs disappear, along with car batteries. And a key to the secret might just be on the Super 8 film. The boys' camera kept on rolling while they rushed for cover.

What makes Super 8 different from other similar movies of this genre is Abrams' ability to convey childhood emotions - much like Spielberg did before him, 20 years ago. Like children in other coming-of-age stories such as Stand by Me, they face a life-changing event completely unprepared but manage to rise to the occasion.

The film works wonderfully, until the big 'reveal' at the end. The film's marketing campaign does a great job of giving away what that secret is, and as a result the climactic ending is less than you may have hoped for. It features many elements and images that will be very familiar to longtime fans of Spielberg's work, as Abrams takes the opportunity to pay homage to his collaborator.

"X-MEN: FIRST CLASS"

Combine this flick with 'Thor', and so far this summer the Marvel Comics movie studio is two-for-two on turning out fun blockbusters.

The "X-Men" movie franchise had lost steam in recent years. After a strong first installment, which helped greenlight modern era of superhero movie with good characters and lots of action, the second film proved to be a worthy sequel.

But the third movie collapsed under the weight of too many new cast members, and then Marvel somehow screwed up a spinoff series based on one of the series' most popular characters, Wolverine.

But "X-Men: First Class" breathes new life into the series with a great cast, an up-and-coming director and a screenplay that once again features great characters and action.

The most interesting conflict in the first two movies was the conflict between a group of good mutants led by wheel-chair-bound telepath Professor X and a group of bad mutants led by the metal-manipulating Magneto.

When we first meet these characters in the earlier films they are old men, with Professor X played by Patrick Stewart and Magneto played by Ian McKellen, whose complicated stories were only hinted at.

In "X-Men: First Class" their relationship gets center stage as we are taken to the early 1960s to learn these enemies were once allies.

Professor X (played here by James McAvoy) was once known only as Charles Xavier, a brilliant, non-paralyzed genetics professor, and Magneto (Michael Fassbender) was known as Erik Lehnsherr, an angry, vengeance-driven Holocaust survivor.

They are thrown together when a group of evil mutants attempt to instigate a nuclear war in a series of events better known as the Cuban Missile Crisis.

The evil mutants are led by Sebastian Shaw (Kevin Bacon), a seemingly ageless mutant who has the power to absorb and deflect energy, and who also worked with the Nazis as one of young Erik's primary tormentors.

The movie is about the relationship between Charles and Erik as they assemble a team of mutants for the U.S. government to take on Shaw and his crew.

Adding some interesting layers of complexity is the character of Mystique, played by Academy-Award nominee Jennifer Lawrence. Mystique is a blue-skinned shape shifter who is Charles' oldest childhood friend, but who is intrigued by Erik and his ideas of mutant domination over humanity.

"X-Men: First Class" promises, and delivers, all you could ever hope for from a summer comic book movie.

"THE HANGOVER PART II"

GRADE: **

If you've been waiting anxiously for the sequel to the smash hit of 2009, 'The Hangover,' hoping it would be everything the first one was, then here's good news - you got your wish.

That's also the bad news. 'The Hangover Part II' can't quite live up to its expectations. Don't get me wrong - it's still very funny, and it's doubtful that it will disappoint many fans of the original. But that's also its biggest drawback - if you've seen the first, you've seen this story before.

The gang's all back this time around: Ed Helms is Stu, the straight-shooting dentist with a wild side, Bradley Cooper is Phil, the ringleader who eggs on the gang into their bad boy antics, and Zach Galifianakis is Alan, everyone's favorite master of random words and deeds. This time the setting isn't Las Vegas but Bangkok, and it's Helms who's getting married, and Ken Jeong, who had a small but important role in the first film, has a more featured part here - which honestly make little sense, why the gang would now be hanging out with him when he was 'so mean' to them the first time around, but anyway...

One very clever aspect of the first film was the way the narrative was handled: They wake up after a wild night of pre-wedding partying with no memory of what happened, and have to piece together events based on clues.

The lost member this time is Teddy (Mason Lee), the 16-year-old younger brother to Lauren (Jamie Chung), Stu's bride-to-be. The "Wolfpack" wakes up in a Bangkok hotel to find Alan's head shaved bald, Stu's face freshly etched with the same tattoo that Mike Tyson sports on his face, and Teddy is gone - well, at least most of him is.

There's no lost baby to carry around, but there is a chain-smoking monkey and a wordless monk in a wheelchair. They've got until the next day to find Teddy to get to the wedding in time.

If it were to stand on its own, "The Hangover Part II" would be a better-than-average comedy. It's loaded with laughs. But it's far too similar to its predecessor to even be considered a stand-alone film, and in that sense, it just doesn't measure up.

"PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN: ON STRANGER TIDES"

GRADE: **

Jack is back, Johnny Depp returns to his iconic role of Captain Jack Sparrow in this all new adventure - but the question is why?

Aside from the dollar signs that Disney execs must have been seeing at the box office, Sparrow's story seemed to have wrapped up nicely at the end of 'Pirates' 3.

But now we are given a fourth tael (which sets up another three movies), where Sparrow crosses paths with the enigmatic Angelica (Penélope Cruz). He's not sure if it's love, or if she's a ruthless con artist who's using him to find the fabled Fountain of Youth. When she forces him aboard the "Queen Anne's Revenge," the ship of the legendary pirate Blackbeard (Ian McShane), Jack finds himself on an unexpected adventure in

FIRST, BE GOOD TO YOURSELF, BURLINGTON

"The Planning Board recently approved a local burgeoning fast-food eating place called B. Good, which is set to occupy the Irish Cottage space at 82 Burlington Mall Road," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Co-founders of B. Good, Anthony Ackil and Jon Olinto, presented their restaurant as one that provides wholesome, nutrition-oriented, handmade foods.

"Our food is made by people, not factories," said Ackil of the restaurant's concept.

"Ackil affirmed that all B. Good restaurants provide nothing but fresh, organic foods, as he noted some examples, including grinding their own meat and cutting their own fries and tomatoes every day. The restaurant imports its produce from local farms.

"The fast-food dining experience has a menu that includes burgers, fries, chicken sandwiches, salads, milkshakes, and freshly hand-made veggie burgers.

"The restaurant will contain 50 total seats, including 42 inside and 8 outside.

"Planning Board members and the planning staff unanimously approved of the establishment and its concept.

"Planning Director Tony Fields stated B. Good is 'positive for the community and the establishment is a good fit for the town.'

"There are currently seven B. Good restaurants in Massachusetts, including Boston, Cambridge, and Hingham.

"Ackil said that 'hopefully' the restaurant will be open in three months."

FIRST TO BE THANKED IN WINCHESTER

"The end of the school year is quickly approaching so it is time to say 'thanks' to that special teacher or staff person who helps students every day," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"This year, consider honoring him or her with a Teacher Tribute from the Winchester Foundation for Educational Excellence, WFEE.

"Why give a Teacher Tribute? This is what Winchester teachers are saying:

"The WFEE Teacher Tribute is like a smile from our students that gets me started again."

"When I receive a Teacher Tribute from a particular family, I immediately smile and recall their child involved in an engaging, hands-on activity that WFEE funded."

"To tribute a favorite teachers, make a tax deductible donation to the WFEE in a teacher's name. A tribute both thanks that special person and helps fund WFEE programs that foster innovation and excellence throughout the entire Winchester school system.

"Each honoree receives a small gift and card naming the donor(s) at the end of the school year. The amount of the donation is kept confidential.

"Thanks to strong community support, WFEE has pledged nearly $140,000 to the public schools in the coming year...."

FIRST FOR THE FOURTH IN WILMINGTON

"The Wilmington Fourth of July Committee recently announced Wilmington High School sophomore Huan Nguyen as the winner of their logo design contest. His design was selected from almost 70 entrants. It will be featured on this year's Fun on the Fourth T-shirts which will be available in both white and blue," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"When asked about his inspiration for the design, Nguyen explained, 'When I think of America, I think of the Statute of Liberty.' For him it seemed natural to use that image as the center of his logo. Nguyen immigrated to the United States from Vietnam in the spring of 2009 when he was in eighth grade. There's definitely a special patriotic feeling that goes along with this display of his personal attitude towards his new home.

"His competition came from the other students in the three Graphic Design 1 classes at the high school. They included students from all grades.

"Haun is very talented," says Jennifer Fidler, Wilmington High School graphic design teacher. 'His drawings are wonderful. Often he starts with a drawing and then uses it as a basis for a computer graphic design.'

"Nguyen also works with other media such as paint and clay. Nguyen says that art and graphic design are just hobbies for him. He doesn't envision this as a career choice. But Fidler points out, 'He is very good, and he could definitely do this as a career.'...."

which he doesn't know whom to fear more: Blackbeard or Angelica, with whom he shares a mysterious past.

Barbarossa (Geoffrey Rush) is also seeking the fountain, and is bent on avenging a wrong done him by Blackbeard.

You need a map to follow along with the plot, which gets confusing at times. Part of the movie is set in London and part of it is in Spain, but the Fountain of Youth stuff takes everyone somewhere that looks a lot like a left-over set piece from TV's "Lost," and could be Hawaii.

Even with these complaints, the film is worth seeing. Depp's Jack Sparrow is still a great comic creation.

They may be looking for the Fountain of Youth, but Depp have already found it in this iconic character, who prints money for Disney bosses as well as he sails the seven seas.

Arguably the best faceoff specialist in the league if not the country, Maggio won 69% of his draws this season, setting school records for faceoff percentage, faceoff wins, ground balls in a season and ground balls in a career.

Frey, a second-team all-conference honoree, was the long-stick midfielder selection to the team. He anchored Merrimack defensive midfield with 16 ground balls and 16 caused turnovers.

Schielke, a preseason All-American and first-team all-conference selection, led the Warriors with 27 caused turnovers while getting 37 ground balls.

•On Saturday, June 18th, 2011 at 11:00 am, the New Hampshire Granite, a scrappy vintage baseball club that models it's uniforms and style of play according to the rules of professional baseball as they were written in 1886, will challenge the Olneyville Cadets to a nine inning match. The match will occur at Morton Field in Reading, a community whose historic roots date back to colonial times.

The New Hampshire Granite Vintage Base Ball Club was established in 2005 to show the public how the game of baseball was played during its formative years in the nineteenth century - without protective equipment and with rules significantly different from those seen in the modern game.

Throughout the 2011 season the Granite will play at least ten vintage baseball contests with other clubs throughout New England and is actively seeking historians, fans, players and umpires to come to a vintage game to see what baseball was like in a by-gone era.

Town Council government in Tewksbury?

By CHRISTINE KENNEY

TWEEKSBURY - On Tuesday, June 7, the Special Act Charter Committee (SACC) held a public hearing, inviting Tewksbury residents to attend and ask questions about the Committee's process as they explore the existing Town Charter and create drafts that suggest updates and changes to the running of town government. Currently, the town upholds the Open Town meeting format, where registered voters directly participate in voting on issues at the meetings. The SACC has created a draft that sticks to this format, with some additional changes included. They have also created a draft that outlines a Town Council format, in which approximately seven Town Council members would vote on the most important matters within the town.

"Our goal is to really get this right and to present the residents from the town of Tewksbury with an alternative to what we have today," said SACC Chairman Scott Wilson.

There were two timelines that the Committee presented: one that plans for a draft to be completed for a Special Town Meeting in October and another that hold off until January or February of 2012. The SACC has not yet divulged the specifics of each draft if implemented, such as how Town Council members would be voted into office and whether or not more public hearings will be held before the proposed changes are completed.

According to the presentation Wilson gave about the various forms of local government, the average town meeting attendance in Tewksbury from 2000-2010 was a paltry 1.4% of residents, and the average special town meeting attendance was 1.9%.

Charlie Anzuoni, a Tewksbury resident, addressed the Committee with his concerns about the public losing their voice. He felt as though the Committee was comparing Tewksbury to a city such as Lowell, rather than a town.

"I don't think we're in [a] situation that we're that size of a town that we can't have our residents have some input," said Anzuoni.

"I think it would be hard to see our community less engaged than 1% of the community coming out to Open Town Meeting. I find that people do want to be engaged," said Wilson. "The residents do have a voice under a council form of government. It's a different voice."

SACC Vice-Chairman Richard O'Neill explained to Anzuoni that if the council draft were implemented, the town would not adapt to a Council format the same way a city would. The boards that are currently elected would not be appointed as they are in a city, but instead they will stay as an election-based system.

"We would have a Town Council that would be reflective of our current Board of Selectmen," said O'Neill. "Every time there has been a power granted we look for the balance and the checking that would go in to ensure the voice of the people...is heard."

"These are features where we are intending to give the people in this town—not just the people who come to Town Meeting—a greater role, a greater voice in the government process in this community," said O'Neill.

O'Neill, a self-proclaimed appreciator of the open-town meeting format, explained that a town council "hybrid" format - as in a combination of the town council format and additional concepts from other forms of local government - will prevent the small number of residents who currently show up to town meeting from making serious decisions for the rest of the community.

Donna Pelczar expressed her concern about the quorum listed in the Council draft, which suggested that a minimum of four council members had to be present; a number she felt was too low.

"Does that mean issues related to finance could be passed with four people?" asked Pelczar.

O'Neill said that he would make a mental note of Pelczar's concern to include specific details about such cases in the draft, and SACC member Liz Carey informed both O'Neill and Pelczar that restrictions are listed somewhere within the Town Charter.

When Pelczar asked a specific question about how residents would vote for issues regarding the Community Preservation funding, the Committee explained that they had not gotten far enough in their process to answer the question. However, O'Neill did bring up the petition option to explain that if residents are unhappy or want a bigger say in a matter, they would have the option to try to do so under the Council format.

Committee member James Biewener wanted to shed a more positive light on the Council, as most of the residents who spoke at the meeting seemed opposed to the concept. About the Council members, he said, "they are elected people. They are accountable to the voter. If you don't like the...way they are conducting town business, vote them out."

"There's a lot of work to be done," said Wilson. Earlier in the meeting, he said that the Town Council format would be a strong direction for Tewksbury to head in.

During his presentation, he said, "63% of US cities/towns with a population of 25,000 or more have a council-manager form of government." Tewksbury has, according to the 2010 federal census, 28,961 residents.

The Committee will hold another public hearing on June 14.

Burlington Minutemen

Are you interested in American History?

BURLINGTON - The Second Parish Minutemen Company is inviting men and women from the Burlington area to participate in reviving an interest in Burlington's part of the American Revolution. As a Burlington Minuteman (or woman) you will be invited to participate in historical reenactments all over New England. Historical and non-historical events, often camping events, with many participants in "colonial life-style encampments" run from early spring through the fall. More local parades are of the "commuter" variety and occur in Lexington, Concord, Wilmington, Woburn, Arlington, Gloucester and many other towns in the greater Boston area.

The Burlington Second Parish company is seeking leaders who would be willing to take part in re-forming the company. Needed are volunteers in several areas, including, but not limited to website design, public speaking, knowledge of American history, knowledge of Burlington's history (not just colonial period) and a desire to honor the current members of the armed forces of America.

Current events on the schedule in Burlington are the 4th of July Parade and Town Day on Burlington Town Common on August 6th.

It is important to note that muskets will not be provided. Any recruits must obtain their own armament, accoutrements and uniforms. The company will, of course, supply information on where these can be obtained.

Tips for a festive 4th of July party

To Americans, Independence Day is a meaningful holiday and often the centerpiece of summertime festivities. Commonly referred to as the 4th of July, the holiday celebrates the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, in which the colonies officially declared their independence from Great Britain.

Among the more patriotic days on the American calendar, the 4th of July is also among the most festive. Fireworks displays occur across the country, and backyard barbecues commonly begin in the afternoon and last well into the night. Party hosts who want to ensure their 4th of July parties go off without a hitch can consider the following tips.

* Coordinate the party with the local fireworks display. Nearly every community has some type of fireworks display. As a result, neighboring towns often agree to spread the events out so not all the displays occur on the same night. Communities might host their displays on the 3rd or 4th of July, and hosts should determine which night their community will be offering their show. Because fireworks shows are such a big part of the holiday, individuals might want to host their party the night of their town's festivities. This enables guests to enjoy the display from the backyard or walk to a nearby open field to enjoy the display.

For hosts who are tailoring their party around the local fireworks show, be sure the guests arrive early enough so everyone can enjoy some barbecue before the show begins because hosts won't want to be hovering over the grill when the show starts.

* Have something for everyone. Independence Day festivities are for people of all ages, so hosts should have something for everyone. Adults may appreciate a cold beer to accompany their hamburgers and fireworks, but be sure to have plenty of other cold beverages on hand as well. Stock up on soda, ice water and other popular non-alcoholic beverages like lemonade and iced tea. Temperatures on the 4th of July are usually pretty warm, so hosts should buy more than they think they might need, as guests will be looking to stay cool and hydrated throughout the party.

When inviting guests, ask if anyone has any particular food allergies or dietary restrictions. Plenty of delicious vegetable dishes can be cooked right on the grill for vegetarian guests, and foods like fish might be more suitable for guests with preexisting health conditions who should not eat red meat.

* Decorate. Just because the party is liable to take place outdoors doesn't mean hosts can't decorate. The 4th of July is all about the red, white and blue, so be sure to display the American flag and decorate in the colors of the U.S.A. Purchase Independence

A tasty and healthy alternative to burgers

Barbecue fans tend to love their hamburgers. Unfortunately, hamburgers don't make for the healthiest fare. Those who love to grill throughout the summer might find their burger bulge adding up come the end of grilling season.

But grill masters need not limit their passion for patties to hamburgers. In fact, the following recipe for "Turkey Patties" from Rebecca Katz's "One Bite at a Time" (Celestial Arts) makes for a healthy and delicious alternative ideal for the grill. For extra flavor, consider whipping up a batch of "Grandma Nora's Salsa Verde" (see box).

Turkey Patties

Makes 8

2 pounds ground dark-meat organic turkey
2/3 cup minced yellow onion

1/4 cup finely chopped fresh basil leaves
1/4 cup finely chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
1 teaspoon minced fresh ginger
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
1 teaspoon crushed fennel seeds
1 teaspoon dried oregano
1/8 teaspoon red pepper flakes
Olive oil for coating the pan or grill

In a large bowl, combine the turkey, onion, basil, parsley, ginger, garlic, salt, fennel, oregano, and red pepper flakes. Mix well. Shape into desired sizes of patties.

Heat a grill pan brushed with oil and brown the patties over medium heat on both sides, about 3 minutes per side. Cover and continue to grill for 3 more minutes until cooked through.

Or, in a saute pan, add just enough oil to coat a hot pan. Saute over medium heat for about 3 minutes on each side to brown, decrease the heat, and add a tablespoon of water. Cover to steam the inside, about 6 minutes. Serve in a pita or on a bun. TF106502

SIDEBAR: Grandma Nora's Salsa Verde
Makes about 1/2 cup

2 bunches fresh, flat-leaf parsley
1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
2 anchovies (optional)
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Pinch of sea salt

Rinse the parsley and shake off any excess water. Remove the stems. Process the parsley in a food processor fitted with a metal blade for about 30 seconds, scraping down the sides afterward.

Add the olive oil, anchovies (optional), garlic, lemon juice, and salt. Process until smooth, stopping and scraping down the sides a couple of times.
